

4.15 LAB: Password modifier

Many user-created passwords are simple and easy to guess. Write a program that takes a simple password and makes it stronger by replacing characters using the key below, and by appending "q*s" to the end of the input string.

- i becomes !
- a becomes @
- m becomes M
- B becomes 8
- o becomes .

Ex: If the input is:

mypassword

the output is:

My@ssw.rdq*s

Hint: Python strings are immutable, but support string concatenation. Store and build the stronger password in the given password variable.
