Conference -- 23-24 February 1999* OECD, 1999-09-02 This publication points the way to future initiatives to improve youth labour market and educational outcomes as identified by policy makers and experts of OECD countries brought together at the Washington Conference Preparing Youth for the 21st Century Resources in Education, 2001-10 Learning to Work, 1995 The Senate Committee on Labor and Human Resources and the House Committee on Education and Labor now the House Committee on Economic and Educational Opportunities asked the Office of Technology Assessment to examine the potential opportunities and possible pitfalls of work based learning that would be supported by the School to Work Opportunities Act STWOA Three main questions are addressed 1 What are the alternative models of work based learning and how effective are they 2 What new learning technologies could support work based learning and 3 How can employers be persuaded to provide work based learning experiences for students This report assesses the potential of work based learning as a component of the school to work transition systems that are currently being developed in many states and local school districts Chapter 1 reports the findings about work based learning and the STWOA Chapter 2 discusses the history of work based learning in the United States as well as problems with school to work transitions and provides an overview of STWOA Chapter 3 describes and analyzes the apparent advantages and disadvantages of five learning processes that can be used in work settings experiential learning work group learning mentoring workplace instruction and technology assisted learning Chapter 4 discusses various ways that work based learning can be structured with respect to the following the types of students who are served the program objectives the coordination with schooling the timing intensity duration and progression of work based experiences the settings of work based learning and the issue of payment for students Chapter 5 describes various models of school to work transition programs with work based learning and summarizes the evidence on their effectiveness These models are youth apprenticeships clinical training cooperative education school to apprenticeship programs school based enterprises and career academies Chapter 6 considers the factors that influence whether or not employers will participate in work based learning programs YLB Learning to work : making the transition from school to work., 1995 Over the past decade public attention has been drawn to the difficulties that many young adults are having in finding their way in the changing economy and earning a decent living A broad movement is emerging across the country to better connect school with career opportunities and further education to help these young adults succeed In 1994 Congress responded by passing the School to Work Opportunities Act STWOA which assists states and localities in establishing comprehensive school to work transition systems Soon after the school to work

legislation was passed by Congress OTA was asked by the Senate Committee on Labor and Human Resources and the House Committee on Education and Labor to assess the potential and problems of work based learning as a component of school to work As the report shows work based learning has considerable promise but will be difficult to implement Work based learning can potentially help students see the relevance of their academic studies later in life allow students to explore career options and help them develop needed occupational skills But the implementation of good work based learning programs will require considerable effort on the part of schools and participating businesses Whether many businesses can be recruited to participate remains to be seen

Students at the Center Joan Shaughnessy, 1998 Panels of noted educational researchers and practitioners discuss three critical elements required to transform schools for the benefit of student learning Three discussion questions are focussing on student learning developing professional learning communities and engaging families and communities

Stone, John Latting, Carolyn Dornsife, 2012-10-12 An in depth investigation into career related programmes in American secondary schools and two year further education colleges is given in this book In addition to reviewing evidence on the effectiveness of vocational coursework the authors analyse programmes involving students who study and work simultaneously including co operative education youth apprenticeship and school based enterprise Chapters deal with the problems encountered in the school to work transition the preparation necessary not only for this transition but for changes encountered when jobs end abruptly and issues covered include combining school based and work based learning and teaching and linking secondary with post secondary education Research on programmes involving students simultaneously working and at school including non school supervised employment is also covered as is co operative education which places students in jobs related to their fields of study The traditional elements of post school education and training are discussed together with an investigation into newer approaches including career academics and career magnet schools and programmes bridging secondary and post secondary education Additionally selected studies of programmes for out of school youth are reviewed To conclude the authors consider new school to work systems and whether specially designed programmes for the non college bound students would be stigmatised as second best or if an alternative programme could maintain an option for students to attend four year colleges and universities the latter making the design and operation of school to work systems more difficult Of interest to administrators teachers policy makers analysts and employers the findings in this book will shed light on the viability of new school to work initiatives currently being implemented in the UK Europe and USA
