Making the World Global Isaac A. Kamola,2019-06-07 Following World War II the American government and philanthropic foundations fundamentally remade American universities into sites for producing knowledge about the world as a collection of distinct nation states As neoliberal reforms took hold in the 1980s visions of the world made popular within area studies and international studies found themselves challenged by ideas and educational policies that originated in business schools and international financial institutions Academics within these institutions reimagined the world instead as a single global market and higher education as a commodity to be bought and sold By the 1990s American universities

embraced this language of globalization and globalization eventually became the organizing logic of higher education In Making the World Global Isaac A Kamola examines how the relationships among universities the American state philanthropic organizations and international financial institutions created the conditions that made it possible to imagine the world as global Examining the Center for International Studies Harvard Business School the World Bank the Social Science Research Council and NYU Kamola demonstrates that how we imagine the world is always symptomatic of the material relations within which knowledge is produced

Accounting for Slavery Caitlin Rosenthal, 2018-08-27 Caitlin Rosenthal explores quantitative management practices on West Indian and Southern plantations showing how planter capitalists built sophisticated organizations and used complex accounting tools By demonstrating that business innovation can be a byproduct of bondage Rosenthal further erodes the false boundary between capitalism and slavery

The Oxford Handbook of Management Ideas Andrew Sturdy, Stefan Heusinkveld, Trish Reay, David Strang, 2019-03-28 Management ideas and their associated applications have become a prevalent feature of our working lives While their focus is familiar such as efficiency motivation and improvement they range from specific notions such as activity based costing to broad movements like corporate social responsibility This Handbook brings together some of the latest research from leading international scholars on how management ideas are produced promoted and adapted and their effects on business and working practices and society at large Rather than focusing on specific management ideas this volume explores their key socio political contexts and channels of dissemination and is organized around four core overlapping themes The first section sets out the research field in general in terms of both an overall system and of different perspectives and research methods The second section explores the role of different actors and channels of diffusion including the consumers and producers of management ideas and new media as well as traditional players in the management ideas field such as consultancies and business schools The third section focuses on specific features or dynamics of the management ideas system such as their adoption evolution institutionalisation and resurgence while in the final section critical and new perspectives on management ideas are examined highlighting specific socio political contexts and the possibility of alternative ideas and forms of critique With a broad range of perspectives represented this Handbook provides a comprehensive authoritative and enduring resource for those studying management innovation and organizational change as well as for those working in the management ideas industry
