Language Of Rock N Roll:

The 'language of Rock 'n' Roll' Bob Young, Micky Moody, 1985-01-01 Translation and Music Sebnem

Susam-Sarajeva, 2016-04-08 Popular and multimodal forms of cultural products are becoming increasingly visible within translation studies research. Interest in translation and music however has so far been relatively limited, mainly because translation of musical material has been considered somewhat outside the limits of translation studies as traditionally conceived. Difficulties associated with issues such as the musicality of lyrics, the fuzzy boundaries between translation, adaptation and rewriting, and the pervasiveness of covert or unacknowledged translations of musical elements in a variety of settings have generally limited the research in this area to overt and canonized translations such as those done for the opera. Yet the intersection of translation and music can be a fascinating field to explore and one which can enrich our understanding of what translation is and how it relates to other forms of expression. This special issue is an attempt to open up the field of translation and music to a wider audience within translation studies and to an extent within musicology and cultural studies. The volume includes contributions from a wide range of musical genres and languages from those that investigate translation and code switching in North African rap and rai and the intertextual and intersemiotic translations revolving around Mahler's lieder in Chinese to the appropriation and afterlife of Kurdish folk songs in Turkish and the emergence of rock n roll in Russian. Other papers examine the reception of Anglo American stage musicals and musical films in Italy and Spain, the concept of singability with examples from Scandinavian languages and the French dubbing of musical episodes of TV series. The volume also offers an annotated bibliography on opera translation and a general bibliography on translation and music.

Language Mixing and Code-Switching in Writing Mark Sebba, Shahrzad Mahootian, Carla Jonsson, 2012-05-22 Code switching or the alternation of languages by bilinguals has attracted an enormous amount of attention from researchers. However, most research has focused on spoken language and the resultant theoretical frameworks have been based on spoken code switching. This volume presents a collection of new work on the alternation of languages in written form. Written language alternation has existed since ancient times. It is present today in a great deal of traditional media and also exists in newer, less regulated forms such as email, SMS messages and blogs. Chapters in this volume cover both historical and contemporary language mixing practices in a large range of language pairs and multilingual communities. The research collected here explores diverse approaches including corpus linguistics, Critical Discourse Analysis, literacy studies, ethnography and analyses of the visual/textual aspects of written data. Each chapter, based on empirical research of multilingual writing, presents methodological approaches as models for other researchers. New perspectives developed in this book include analysis specific to written rather than spoken discourse, approaches from the new literacy studies treating mixed language literacy from a practice perspective, a focus on both traditional and new media types and the semiotics of both text and the visual environment.
