Language Engineering And Translation Consequences Of Automation:

Language Engineering and Translation Juan C. Sager, 1994-04-22 At a time when information technology has become a regular tool of specialised translators in all aspects of their work it is useful to place the activity of technical translation into its appropriate environment and to describe it from the point of view of its role in the broader context of communication in which it occurs The advent of automated alternatives to human translation has fundamentally affected the profession its products and the relationship between translators and their clients This book presents and discusses the process of translation against this background The context in which translation is normally studied is widened in order to re examine the process of translation as part of interlingual text production and to analyse the manner in which the new tools affect the product of translation This book is of particular relevance in modern translator training courses Contents 1 The language industry and translation 2 Aspects of language 3 Elements of communication theory 4 A theory of text types and messages 5 The nature of translation 6 Specifications Factors influencing the translation 7 Preparation for translation 8 Steps in translation 9 Human and Machine Translation 10 Pragmatic circumstances of automation 11 Translation in an information technology environment Bibliography Index

In Translation Paul St-Pierre, Prafulla C. Kar, 2007-01-01 With contributions by researchers from India Europe North America and the Caribbean In Translation Reflections refractions transformations touches on questions of method and on topics including copyright cultural hybridity globalization identity construction and minority languages which are important for the disciplinary development of translation studies but also of interest to other fields as well most notably comparative literature cultural studies and world literature The volume provides a forum for new voices to be heard alongside those of well established scholars and for current concerns to express themselves often focusing on practices in areas of the world other than Europe or North America which have until now tended to dominate the field Acknowledging difference and celebrating it the contributions conceive of translation as a process which reconstitutes and transforms which brings renewal and growth an interaction in a new context a new reading a new writing

Developing Translation Competence Christina Schäffner, Beverly Adab, 2000-10-15 This volume presents a comprehensive study of what constitutes Translation Competence from the various sub competences to the overall skill Contributors combine experience as translation scholars with their experience as teachers of translation The volume is organized into three sections Defining

Building and Assessing Translation Competence The chapters offer insights into the nature of translation competence and its place in the translation training programme in an academic environment and show how theoretical considerations have contributed to defining building and assessing translation competence offering practical examples of how this can be achieved The first section introduces major sub competences including linguistic cultural textual subject research and transfer competence The second section presents issues relating to course design methodology and teaching practice The third section reflects on criteria for quality assessment

Training for the New Millennium Martha Tennent, 2005-01-01 Originating at an international forum held at the University of Vic Spain the twelve essays collected here attest to important changes in translation practice and the assumptions which underpin them Leading theorists respond to the state of Translation Studies today particularly the epistemological dilemma between theories that are empirically oriented and those that are inspired by developments in Cultural Studies But the volume is also practical Experienced instructors survey existing pedagogies at translator interpreter training programs and explore new techniques that address the technological and global challenges of the new millennium Among the topics considered are how to use translation technology in the classroom how to construct a syllabus for a course in audiovisual translating or in translation theory and how to develop guidelines for a program for community interpreters or conference interpreters The contributors all assume that translation whether written or oral does not occupy a neutral space It is a cross cultural exchange that produces far reaching social effects Their essays significantly advance the theoretical and practical understanding of translation along these lines

The Critical Link 4 Cecilia Wadensjö, Birgitta Englund Dimitrova, Anna-Lena Nilsson, 2007-05-16 This book is a collection of papers presented in Stockholm at the fourth Critical Link conference The book is a well balanced mix of academic research and texts of a more practical professional character The introducing article explicitly addresses the issue of professionalism and how this has been dealt with in research on interpreting The following two sections provide examples of recent research applying various theoretical approaches Section four reports on the development of current more or less local standards Section five raises issues of professional ideology The final section tells about new training initiatives and programmes All contributions were selected because of their relevance to the theme of professionalisation of interpreting in the community The volume is the fourth in a series documenting the advance of a whole new empirical and professional field It is of central interest for all people involved in this development interpreters researchers trainers and others

Repairing Texts Hans P. Krings, 2001 This study challenges the idea that given the effectiveness of machine translation major costs could be reduced by using monolingual staff to post edit translations It presents studies of machine translation systems and current research into translation process

The Human Translator in the 2020s Gary Massey, Elsa Huertas-Barros, David Katan, 2022-12-19 Has the language industry of the 21st century been racing ahead of the translation profession and leaving translators behind Or are translators adapting to new sociotechnical realities and societal demands and if so how The chapters in this volume seek to shed light on the profiles and position of human translators in the current decade This collection draws together the work of leading authors to reflect on the constantly evolving language industry The eight chapters present new perspectives on and concepts of translation in a digital world They highlight the shifts taking place in the sociotechnical environment of translation and the need to address changing buyer needs and market demands with new services profiles and training In doing so they share a common focus on the added value that human translators can and do bring to bear as adaptive creative digitally literate experts Addressing an international readership this volume is of interest to advanced students and researchers in translation and interpreting studies and professionals in the global language industry

Memes of Translation Andrew Chesterman, 1997-06-05 Memes of Translation is a search for coherence in translation theory based on the notion of Memes ideas that spread develop and replicate like genes The author explores a wide range of ideas on translation mapping the meme pool of translation theory with chapters on translation history norms strategies assessment ethics and translator training The aim of the book is to search for a perspective from which the immense variety of ideas about translation can be related The unifying thread is the philosophy of Karl Popper The book proposes the beginnings of a Popperian theory of translation based on the fundamental concepts of norms strategies and values A key idea is that a translation itself is a theory or hypothesis concerning the source text This hypothesis is then subjected to testing refinement and perhaps even rejection just like any other hypothesis

Describing Cognitive Processes in Translation Maureen Ehrensberger-Dow, Birgitta Englund Dimitrova, Séverine Hubscher-Davidson, Ulf Norberg, 2015-09-15 This volume addresses translation as an act and an event having as its main focus the cognitive and mental processes of the translating or interpreting individual in the act of translating while opening up wider perspectives by including the social situation in explorations of the translation process First published as a special issue of Translation and Interpreting Studies issue 8 2 2013 the chapters in this volume deal with various aspects of translators and interpreters observable and non observable processes thus encouraging further research at the interface of cognitive and sociological approaches in this area In terms of those distinctions the chapters can be characterized as studies of the actual cognitive translation acts of other processes related to the translation acts or of processes that are related to the sociological translation event

Translation Universals Anna Mauranen, Pekka Kujamäki, 2004 Translation universals is one of the most intriguing and controversial topics in recent translation studies Can we discover general laws of translation independent of the particularities of individual translations Research into this is new serious empirical work only began in the late nineties The present volume offers the state of the art on the issue It includes theoretical discussion on alternative conceptualisations and new distinctions around the basic concepts Several papers test hypotheses on universals in the light of recent work in different languages and some suggest new ones emerging from empirical work over the last two to three years The book contributes to the search for generalities in translation the methodological solutions available and presents emerging evidence on the kinds of regularities that large scale research is bringing forth On a more practical level the applicability of the hypotheses and findings to translator education is as always a concern for translation studies
