Lights Ladder Poems:

Light's Ladder Christopher Howell, 2016-06-01 In this extraordinary new collection by distinguished poet Christopher Howell the opening poem presents us with a spiritual paradox that will echo throughout its pages The speaker remembers an earlier time of happiness freedom and a certain innocence The poem closes with And if he remembers now he is in love which is the soul's condition and alone because that is how we live How we live is the book's major inquiry its illustration the poem's major achievement How do we live in our dailiness in our loves our private and global wars And in the face of unbearable grief how can we live Keats When Keats at last beyond the curtain of love's distraction lay dying in his room on the Piazza di Spagna the melody of the Bernini Fountain filling him like flowers he held his breath like a coin looked out into the moonlight and thought he saw snow He did not suppose it was fever or the body's weakness turning the mind He thought England and there he was secretly for the rest of his improvidently short life up to his neck in sleigh bells and the impossibly English cries of street vendors perfect and affectionate as his soul For days the snow and statuary sang him so far beyond regret that if now you walk rancorless and alone there in the piazza the white shadow of his last words to Severn Don't be frightened may enter you
