Jorge Luis Borges

Fear Of Mirrors:

Fear of Mirrors Tariq Ali, 2016-11-29 For some East Germans the fall of communism was like the end of a long and painful love affair free to tell the truth at last they found they no longer wanted to hear it The nation may be reunified but the life of former East German dissident Vladimir Meyer has fallen apart His wife has deserted him He has been fired from his university for being a Marxist Vlady wants to tell his alienated son Karl what his family s long and passionate involvement with communism really meant This is interwoven with the story of Ludwik the Polish secret agent who recruited Philby and of Gertrude Vlady s mother whose desire for Ludwik is matched only by her devotion to the Communist ideal As the plot unfolds through the political upheavals of the twentieth century Vlady describes the hopes aroused by the Bolshevik revolution and discovers the almost unbearable truth about their betrayal

The Encyclopedia of Phobias, Fears, and Anxieties, Third Edition Ronald Manual Doctor, Ada P. Kahn, Christine A. Adamec, 2010-05-12 Explains the meaning of terms and concepts related to specific phobias forms of therapy and medicines and identifies key researchers

An Anthropological Guide to the Art and Philosophy of Mirror Gazing Maria Danae Koukouti, Lambros Malafouris, 2020-09-03 Looking at one s face in the mirror and finding one s self in the mirror are not the same The former capacity is something we share with other animals the latter is a skill something we have to learn What does it mean and what does it take to find oneself the mirror This book provides a comparative anthropological enquiry into the unity and diversity of mirror gazing The reader is encouraged to reflect upon and experiment with different mirror gazes through a range of case studies Koukouti and Malafouris weave together anthropology with philosophy and draw on examples from literature and experiments from psychopathology in a way that has never been attempted before The master metaphor is that of the mirror as trap Mirror gazing is viewed on a par with hunting Mirroring signifies the hunt for self knowledge In a time obsessed with the digital self image Koukouti and Malafouris reflect on the structures of consciousness that underpin the different ways of looking at and through the mirror Combining metaphor comparison and estrangement they gesture towards a therapeutic alliance between body and mirroring This allows us to look in the mirror and think of our shared humanity differently

Proceedings of the 7th International Conference on Neuroscience, Neurology, and Psychiatry Universitas Sumatera Utara (ICONAP 2024)

Mustafa M. Amin, Elmeida Effendy, Inke Nadia Diniyanti Lubis, Fasihah Irfani Fitri, Roger Ho Chun Man, Hatta Sidi, Nerdy Nerdy, Sibylle G Schwab, 2024-12-20 This is an open access book For more than 2000 years in the West neurology and psychiatry were considered part of one unified branch of medicine often called neuropsychiatry Charcot Freud Jackson Bleuler among many others thought in terms of a unified study of the brain and mind regardless of specific clinical and research interests However during the 20th century a schism emerged as each of these fields went their own way Neurologists focused on brain disorders with cognitive and behavioral abnormalities that were also accompanied by somatic signs stroke multiple sclerosis Parkinson s and so on while psychiatrists focused on mood and thought disorders that were not accompanied by physical signs found on neurological examination of the motor and sensory systems schizophrenia depression anxiety disorders and so on Most people affected by mental and neurological disorders do not have access to a wide range of evidence based interventions that can prevent and treat these disorders resulting in a huge treatment gap This problem is not just limited to mental and neurological disorders as cost effective interventions in other health sectors are inadequately available and underutilized De Savigny and Adams have mentioned evidence based interventions often fail to achieve their goals not because of inherent deficiencies in the intervention itself but because of the unpredictable behavior of the system around it Because of the enormous increase in neurobiological knowledge in recent years and the growing number of disorders including those mentioned above that were once thought to be psychopathological but are now known to be neuropathological some neurologists may cling to the view that their specialty has now emerged alone as the queen of medical science Neurologists and psychiatrists must have a fairly broad perspective as the domains of intentional behavior and intentionality final causation are brain mind functions that are no less important than sensory perception and movement Clearly the education of future generations of neurologists and psychiatrists should be grounded in neuroscience but should also be focused on those dimensions of professional activity that essentially define the work of medical doctors from the neck to the head Brave Beth Jones,2015-03-03 ARE YOU READY TO TAP INTO GOD S POWER FOR A COURAGEOUS
