

THE HISTORICAL FOUNDATION OF GLOBALIZATION

The historical foundation of globalization can be traced back to ancient times, although the modern concept of globalization as we know it today has its roots in the late 19th and early 20th centuries. Here is an overview of the historical foundations of globalization:

Silk Road: The Silk Road was like an ancient international highway that existed for many years. It allowed people from the East (like China) and the West (like the Mediterranean region) to trade things, share their cultures, and exchange ideas. Imagine it as a very long marketplace that connected different parts of the world, and it played a big part in starting globalization.

Age of Exploration: In the 15th and 16th centuries, brave European explorers like Christopher Columbus, Vasco da Gama, and Ferdinand Magellan set out on adventurous journeys. They discovered new lands and found new ways to trade with far-off places. This is when the world began to get closer as people from different continents started to meet and trade.

Colonialism and Imperialism: European countries became very powerful and created big empires in Asia, Africa, and the Americas. They ruled over these places and connected them to Europe. This led to the exchange of goods, resources, and even different cultures between these distant parts of the world.

Industrial Revolution: A long time ago, in the late 18th century, something called the Industrial Revolution happened. During this time, machines and factories changed the way things were made. People invented things like steamships and railways, which made it much easier to send things across borders. This made the world smaller and helped globalization grow.

Telecommunications and Transportation: In the 19th century, communication got a big upgrade with the invention of the telegraph and later the telephone. It was like a very fast way to send messages over long distances. Then, in the 20th century, we had airplanes for travel and big ships with special containers for carrying goods. This made it even quicker and cheaper to connect the world.

Bretton Woods Conference (1944): After World War II, leaders from many countries got together and had a meeting called the Bretton Woods Conference. They made some important rules about how money and trade should work between countries. This created organizations like the International Monetary Fund (IMF) and the World Bank, which helped countries cooperate and trade with each other better.

GATT and WTO: In 1947, something called the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT) was created. It was like a set of rules to make it easier to trade by reducing taxes on imported goods. Later, in 1995, they made the World Trade Organization (WTO) to help countries trade smoothly and fairly.

Information Technology and the Internet: Think about the internet like a super-fast way to talk to people all around the world. It showed up in the late 20th century and changed the way we communicate. Now, people from anywhere can connect and share information in an instant, making the world feel very small.

Globalistics and Globalization Studies: Theories, Research & Teaching Leonid Grinin,Ilya Ilyin,Andrey Korotayev,2013-09-30 This is the second issue of the new series titled Globalistics and Globalization Studies Globalistics may be regarded as a sort of systemic and more or less integrated core within Global Studies At present Global Studies function in two main dimensions in the research of global political economic cultural and social processes on the one hand and in the realm of teaching manifesting themselves in the creation of various Global Studies programs and courses for university students who learn to see the world in its entirety and variety The second dimension is immensely important as the contents of such programs and courses may determine how the world will be comprehended by those people who may decide its fate in a decade or two This dualistic nature of Global Studies has determined the general direction of our anthology that comprises both the theoretical dimension of Global Studies and their application to the teaching process The anthology consists of three parts presenting a wide range of views on the meaning of the contemporary epoch the past and the future of some important global processes as well as the problems and successes in the teaching process of Global Studies Part 1 Globalization in Historical Retrospective Part 2 Globalistics Global Studies and Global Processes Part 3 Teaching Global Studies In the present anthology one can find perceptions of globalization by a number of famous scholars from different countries of the world Ervin Laszlo Christopher Chase Dunn and others but one can also get to know rather peculiar visions of globalization by Russian scientists and educators

Globalisation and the Nation in Imperial Germany Sebastian Conrad, 2010-09-02 Translation of award winning study of the development of German nationalism in a global context

Comparing Globalizations Thomas D. Hall, 2017-11-17 This work explores essential debates on globalization and world systems analysis It begins with a review of theoretical insights from world systems analysis and explains the evolution of its terminology The book subsequently seeks to answer several important questions When did globalization begin and what insights into contemporary globalization may be gained from older forms How does globalization differ in different places and how can different instances of globalization be compared Who is affected by globalization how are they affected and how do these effects vary if at all over time and space As world systems analysis and studies of globalization require interdisciplinary expertise the contributing authors draw on many fields including anthropology economics geography philosophy political science sociology and world history The book's overall goal is to facilitate the dialogue between approaches that at times seem to talk at cross purposes and to extend an invitation to scholars from many different areas to explore globalization

Global Injustice and Crime Control Wendy Laverick, 2016-02-12 Global Injustice and Crime Control places cross border cross national and international crime and crime control within its wider context It examines theory from a range of disciplines and introduces students to the frequently neglected area of the world order and world politics in an effort to direct attention to the links between events power ideas institutions policies actions and counter actions at the international and domestic level In an increasingly interconnected and interdependent world the various dimensions of globalisation play a pivotal role in issues of crime and criminal justice in the 21st century This interdisciplinary textbook offers a critical treatment of the development and recent acceleration of national regional and international efforts at cross border crime control and law enforcement The book not only places cross national and international efforts by police courts regional and international agencies within their historical context but also focuses on elucidating leading theoretical perspectives from within globalisation literature criminology and international relations to shed light upon both sides of this phenomenon Areas covered include cross border crime and security state crime and corruption international responses to genocide terrorism and counter terrorism organised crime This book will be perfect reading for modules in transnational crime and justice and will be of interest to students in criminology policing public policy and international relations
