Feeling And Reason In The Arts:

Feeling and Reason in the Arts David Best, 2025-10-31 First published in 1985 Feeling and Reason in the Arts raises an important question how can a central role for the arts and in particular the arts in education be justified The arts and the artistic judgments are often expressions of individual feeling and value and it is a common belief that this necessarily implies a subjectivism that is incompatible with the notion that artistic judgments can be rationally supported If this belief is correct there is clearly a problem about how the arts can be justified in education This book shows that this dilemma can be resolved only if one recognises that it is created by incoherently narrow and oversimple conceptions of rational justification and feeling With more adequate conceptions a sound argument can be provided for the place and value of the arts in education and in society more generally Clearly these issues are of crucial practical relevance at a time when the arts are under threat This exposition of arguments in their support is important and timely This is an interesting work for scholars and researchers of arts and philosophy

The Rationality of Feeling David Best, 2011 This volume emphasizes the necessity for arts teachers to nurture the personal development of their students by expanding their artistic understanding and creativity In aiming to provide a broader understanding for the effective teaching of the arts the author provides powerful reasons for seeing the arts as agents of learning understanding and development The volume also demonstrates that whilst the arts are centrally concerned with feeling they are as fully open to objective reasoning as any other subject discipline such as science but the dichotomy between scientism and subjectivism is all pervading in a curriculum which marginalises the teaching of the arts

Emotion and the Arts Mette Hjort, Sue Laver, 1997-09-04 Although there are a number of anthologies dealing with various topics related to the emotions this is the first to focus on the arts The editors have collected new essays on emotion and its relation to the arts by fifteen leading aestheticians The essays consider such topics as the paradox of fiction emotion in the pure and abstract arts the rationality and ethics of emotional responses to art and the value of emotion Contributors include Robert Solomon Rom Harré Kendall Walton and Jerrold Levinson

John Stuart Mill and the Art of Life Ben Eggleston, Dale Miller, David Weinstein, 2011 The Art of Life is John Stuart Mill's name for his account of practical reason In this volume eleven leading scholars elucidate this fundamental but widely neglected element of Mill's thought Mill divides the Art of Life into three departments Morality Prudence or Policy and Aesthetics In the volume's first section Rex Martin David Weinstein Ben Eggleston and Dale E Miller investigate the relation between the departments of morality and prudence Their papers ask whether Mill is a rule utilitarian and if so whether his practical philosophy must be incoherent The second section contains papers by Jonathan Riley and Wendy Donner who explore the relation between the departments of morality and aesthetics They discuss issues ranging from supererogation to aesthetic pleasure and humanity's relationship with nature The papers in the third section consider the Art of Life's axiological first principle the principle of utility Elijah Millgram contends that Mill's own life refutes his claim that the Art of Life has a single axiological first principle Philip Kitcher maintains that Mill has a dynamic axiology requiring us to continually refine our conception of the good In the final section three papers address what it means to put the Art of Life into practice Robert Haraldsson locates an Art of Ethics in On Liberty that is in tension with the Art of Life Nadia Urbinati plumbs the classical roots of Mill's view of the good life Finally Colin Heydt develops Mill's suggestion that we regard our own lives as works of art

The Arts, 1923 Psychoanalytic Perspectives on Art, V.2 Mary M. Gedo, 2013-05-13 This new hardcover annual offers a unique scholarly format an interdisciplinary dialogue that it is hoped will foster the development of a sound useful methodology for applying psychoanalytic insight to art and artists The series provides a medium for those who study art those who interpret it and occasionally those who create it formally to explore the meaning of an artistic work as the direct reflection of the inner world of its creator Within each volume individual topics are addressed by either an art historian or a psychoanalyst with a response frequently tendered by an expert from the other field Reviews of important books of cross disciplinary interest are treated in a similar manner and include rebuttals by the authors themselves It is precisely this exchange of ideas among scholars with difference perspectives on the meaning of a work of art that sets PPA apart from the standard art history publication Its depth of scholarship coupled with its innovative format make it a fascinating addition to the burgeoning field of psychoanalytic studies of art history

Art's Emotions Damien Freeman, 2014-09-03 Despite the very obvious differences between looking at Manet's Woman with a Parrot and listening to Elgar's Cello Concerto both experiences provoke similar questions in the thoughtful aesthete why does the painting seem to express reverie and the music nostalgia How do we experience the reverie and nostalgia in such works of art Why do we find these experiences rewarding in similar ways As our awareness of emotion in art and our engagement with art's emotions can make such a special contribution to our life it is timely for a philosopher to seek to account for the nature and significance of the experience of art's emotions Damien Freeman develops a new theory of emotion that is suitable for resolving key questions in aesthetics He then reviews and evaluates three existing approaches to artistic expression and proposes a new approach to the emotional experience of art that draws on the strengths of the existing approaches Finally he seeks to establish the ethical significance of this emotional experience of art for human flourishing Freeman challenges the reader not only to consider how art engages with emotion but how we should connect up our answers to questions concerning the nature and value of the experiences offered by works of art the Human Positioning in the Cosmos Anna-Teresa Tymieniecka,2012-10-11 The classic conception of human transcendental consciousness assumes its self supporting existential status within the horizon of life world nature and earth Yet this assumed absoluteness does not entail the nature of its powers neither their constitutive force This latter call for an existential source reaching beyond the generative life world network Transcendental consciousness having lost its absolute status its point of reference it is the role of the logos to lay down the harmonious positioning in the cosmic sphere of the all establishing an original foundation of phenomenology in the primogenital onto-poiesis of life Proceedings National
