

Button & Arch

It is assumed that this is an old Duncan pattern. The moulds were acquired from Rolston Westlake, a former Columbus mayor. The man had been in business to have moulds made or reproduced. In the 1950s he would have Fenton make the glass for him and then he would decorate those pieces for fairs or special events. A date or initials of the event and the customers name could be engraved on the piece. After he closed his business, Fenton purchased the moulds.

The Indiana Goblet and Tumbler Company in Greentown, Indiana, produced the Cactus pattern from 1901 to 1903. This company is often referred to by collectors today as Greentown Glass. Several old pieces of this pattern were purchased and Fenton first reproduced the pattern in the 1960s.
