

Fully ripened before picking and put up right in Hawaii
where it grows

Fresh, sun-ripened flavor! This is the Libby's ideal! With pineapples even more than with other fruits the Libby's ideal is important. All the flavor, the natural sugar in pineapples come in the last few hours, before they are fully ripe. Pineapples picked for shipment when poorly ripened never reach this fragrant perfection—never have this luscious flavor.

To give you this sun-ripened pineapple Libby's has built two kitchens in golden Hawaii. At Kalahele and Kailua they are located, for these pineapples grow big and luscious with a fragrance like that of hyacinths and a flavor that is indescribably delicious.

The flavor sealed tight in a few minutes

No oriental perfumer could guard the fragrance of his rarest perfume more carefully than Libby's guards from escape the perfect aroma of these pineapples.

The moment they are picked they are rushed to Libby's immediate kitchens. Within a few minutes they are sealed tight in their packages.

Libby's brought their first Hawaiian Pineapple to America when it was a tropical luxury. Today there is such a demand for it that it grows in fields, a good hotel, or a restaurant that would leave it off the bill of fare. In the smallest of homes it is regularly served as a breakfast fruit, as a snack, at tea & dinner.

The moment your spoon cuts into its peach-like texture—the moment you taste its flower-like delicacy you will know why the Libby's brand of flavor from mature pineapple is universally popular in America today.
