The Aesthetics of Island Space Johannes Riquet, 2019-12-17 Oxford Textual Perspectives is a series of informative and provocative studies focused upon literary texts conceived of in the broadest sense of that term and the technologies cultures and communities that produce inform and receive them It provides fresh interpretations of fundamental works and of the vital and challenging issues emerging in English literary studies By engaging with the materiality of the literary text its production and reception history and frequently testing and exploring the boundaries of the notion of text itself the volumes in the series question familiar frameworks and provide innovative interpretations of both canonical and less well known works The Aesthetics of Island Space discusses islands as central figures in the modern experience of space It examines the spatial poetics of islands in literary texts from Shakespeare's The Tempest to Ghosh's The Hungry Tide in the journals of explorers and scientists such as James Cook and Charles Darwin and in Hollywood cinema It traces the ways in which literary and cinematic islands have functioned as malleable spatial figures that offer vivid perceptual experiences as well as a geopoetic oscillation between the material energies of words and images and the energies of the physical world The chapters focus on America's island gateways Roanoke and Ellis Island visions of tropical islands Tahiti and imagined South Sea islands the islands of the US Canadian border region in the Pacific Northwest and the imaginative appeal of mutable islands It argues that modern voyages of discovery posed considerable perceptual and cognitive challenges to the experience of space and that these challenges were negotiated in complex and contradictory ways via poetic engagement with islands Discussions of island narratives in postcolonial theory have broadened understanding of how islands have been imagined as geometrical abstractions bounded spaces easily subjected to the colonial gaze There is however a second story of islands in the Western imagination which runs parallel to this colonial story In this alternative account the modern experience of islands in the age of discovery went hand in hand with a disintegration of received models of understanding global space Drawing on and rethinking post phenomenological geocritical and geopoetic theories The Aesthetics of Island Space argues that the modern experience of islands as mobile and shifting territories implied a dispersal fragmentation and diversification of spatial experience and it explores how this disruption is registered and negotiated by both non fictional and fictional responses

Hopelessly Alien Louis Corsino, 2024-05-01 Hopelessly Alien is an in depth study of Italian immigration to Chicago Heights Illinois between 1910 and 1950 Drawing upon oral histories interviews historical documents and census materials

Louis Corsino examines the critical concept of hope which most immigration studies have cast in privatized psychological terms as the motivation to emigrate in search of a better life This investigation offers a more contentious sociological perspective depicting hope as both an ideological lure to recruit and manage the foreign element and as a resource immigrants employed to purchase acceptance and avoid a disparaging label as a hopelessly alien stranger These dialectical processes are illustrated through the Italian immigrants pursuit of occupational mobility and homeownership and the appropriation of their children s hopes Each became forms of cultural capital that demonstrated a public commitment to the American ethos of joyful striving Each provided measures of success but these individual pursuits came at the expense of upsetting the necessary tension between individual and communal hopes

Making a Living in America Pasquale De Marco, 2025-05-18 In the early 20th century a wave of Jewish immigrants arrived in America bringing with them their dreams their traditions and their indomitable spirit This book tells the story of how these newcomers fleeing persecution and poverty in Eastern Europe carved out a new life for themselves in the vibrant streets of New York's Lower East Side. Facing discrimination and prejudice, they found solace and strength in their community, their faith, and their unwavering belief in the American Dream. They toiled in garment factories, pushed heavy carts through the city streets, and raised families in cramped apartments, all the while forging a new identity that blended their Jewish heritage with the opportunities and aspirations of their adopted country. With resilience and determination, they overcame adversity and made significant contributions to American society. They played a pivotal role in the labor movement, fought for social justice, and served their country with honor during times of war. Their story is one of resilience, innovation, and the pursuit of a better life for themselves and their families. This book delves into the rich tapestry of Jewish life on the Lower East Side, exploring the synagogues, schools, and cultural institutions that immigrants established to preserve their heritage and build a sense of community. It also examines the challenges they faced, from discrimination and poverty to the rise of anti-Semitism. Through the experiences of these Jewish immigrants, we gain a deeper understanding of the American experience and the enduring values that have shaped this nation. Their story is a testament to the power of community, the resilience of the human spirit, and the unwavering belief in the promise of America. If you like this book, write a review on Google Books.
