Evaluating Development Aid Issues Problems And Solutions:

Evaluating Development Aid Basil E. Cracknell,2000-01 Does Development Aid Affect Conflict Ripeness?

Lucie Podszun,2011-08-27 Many developing countries find themselves in seemingly intractable internal conflicts hindering them from moving on into a more stable secure and wealthy environment It seems that underdevelopment and conflict go hand in hand Underdevelopment most often implies large streams of development aid channeled into countries at war The work evaluates to what extent an increase in development aid affects conflict ripeness The research shows that the effect is ambivalent it depends on the conditions of provision whether it is positive or negative In general an increase in development aid decreases the intensity of one of the ingredients to conflict ripeness the mutually hurting stalemate However if embedded into a smart strategy an increase in development aid enhances the second ingredient to conflict ripeness the sense of a way out By that it counterbalances the negative effect and thus fosters the phase of ripeness creating an ideal starting position for a subsequent peace process

Evaluating Development Programmes and Projects

Reidar Dale,2004-11-16 Issues of evaluation methodology practice and use have become prominent in recent times since the need for evaluation is increasingly being felt in many different areas of public life This entirely New Edition of a successful book deals with the focus scope and methodology of evaluation in the field of societal development The focus is on development programmes and projects in lesser developed countries but the author's methodological frameworks have a wider framework Evaluation Methodologies for Aid in Conflict Ole Winckler Andersen, Beate Bull, Megan Kennedy-Chouane, 2013-12-13 Knowledge and rigorous evidence around the role of external development partners in situations of conflict and fragility is still lacking There is little accountability for the billions in aid being spent in places like Afghanistan Iraq and the Democratic Republic of Congo This book analyses evaluation theory and practice in order to help fill this knowledge gap and advocates a realistic and rigorous approach to evaluating international engagement Through a series of case studies this book highlights both the promise and potential pitfalls of taking a more evaluative approach to understanding aid in conflict regions These illustrate the methodological and analytical approach taken by researchers working to understand the results and effectiveness of conflict prevention and peacebuilding support While well grounded in current theoretical and methodological debates the book provides valuable practical information by examining how and why different choices were made in the context of each evaluation The book shows what future steps may be envisaged to further strengthen evaluations of support for conflict prevention and peacebuilding The analysis draws on a wealth of perspectives and voices to provide researchers and students in development studies and conflict and peace studies as well as development evaluators with a deep and broad understanding of evaluation methods and approaches Innovation for development Devaux, A., Ordinola, M., Horton, D., 2011-11-30 Development Planning Concepts and Tools for Planners, Managers and Facilitators Reidar Dale, 2005 International Development Bruce Currie-Alder, Ravi Kanbur, David M. Malone, Rohinton Medhora, 2014-02-27 Thinking on development informs and inspires the actions of people organizations and states in their continuous effort to invent a better world This volume examines the ideas behind development their origins how they have changed and spread over time and how they may evolve over the coming decades It also examines how the real life experiences of different countries and organizations have been inspired by and contributed to thinking on development The extent to which development works depends in part on particular local historical or institutional contexts General policy prescriptions fail when the necessary conditions that make them work are either absent ignored or poorly understood There is a need to grasp how people understand their own development experience If the countries of the world are varied in every way from their initial conditions to the degree of their openness to outside money and influence and success is not centred in any one group it stands to reason that there cannot be a single recipe for development Each chapter provides an analytical survey of thinking about development that highlights debates and takes into account critical perspectives It includes contributions from scholars and practitioners from the global North and the global South spanning at least two generations and multiple disciplines It will be a key reference on the concepts and theories of development their origins evolution and trajectories and act as a resource for scholars graduate students and practitioners The European Union's Democratization Policy for Central Asia Vera Axyonova, 2014-10-01 Community Organization and Development Steve

Clarke,2017-03-23 This book traces the development of community development organization as it evolved separately in Britain and the United States and how the social and political situations in each country determined the various shapes and directions it took In presenting a comprehensive history of the subject Community Organization and Development draws on local and international factors that have helped to shape its application and fortunes across varied settings Recent economic and social pressures the changing demographics of developed economies and the rise of social and cultural diversity all contribute to the need for a comprehensive model that can be deployed to effect the necessary social changes required for sustained change with stability The history of this intervention technique throws up many examples from which insight can be gained for the present time and Wales is used as an example of how national policy and local development could be combined for maximum effect Community development should become reliable and quantifiable and the comprehensive model developed here demonstrates how and when it should be deployed BRAC, Global Policy Language, and Women in Bangladesh Manzurul Mannan,2015-08-31 A critical examination of the impact of BRAC the world s largest NGO on the status of women in Southern Bangladeshi cultural life Founded in 1972 and now the largest NGO in the world BRAC has been lauded for its efforts aimed at lifting the poor especially women out of poverty In BRAC Global Policy Language and Women in Bangladesh Manzurul Mannan while not denying the many positive accomplishments of BRAC places the organization under a critical microscope Drawing on his experience as a Bangladeshi native and BRAC insider Mannan provides unique insights into not only BRAC s phenomenal growth and its role in diffusing western and development ideologies but also more importantly how target populations have been affected culturally and socially He explains how BRAC has employed western ideas theories and philosophies of agency when engaging in development interventions in even the remotest villages seeking to transform social structures women s status and the local polity The resulting intermingling of exogenous perspectives with local knowledge leads to a degree of inconsistency and dissonance within BRAC s own operations while generating opposition from local commoners and elites Cautionary yet hopeful the book advocates greater cultural sensitivity as a way to mitigate conflict between BRAC and the constituencies it serves Project Management and Engineering Research José Luis Ayuso Muñoz,José Luis Yagüe Blanco,Salvador F. Calamities Heike Egner, Marén Schorch, Martin Voss, 2014-08-13 It is widely assumed that humanity should be able to learn from calamities e.g. emergencies, disasters, catastrophes and that the affected individuals, groups and enterprises as well as the concerned disaster management organizations and institutions for prevention and mitigation will be able to be better prepared or more efficient next time. Furthermore, it is often assumed that the results of these learning processes are preserved as knowledge in the collective memory of a society and that patterns of practices were adopted on this base. Within history, there is more evidence for the opposite. Analyzing past calamities reveals that there is hardly any learning and if so, that it rarely lasts more than one or two generations. This book explores whether learning in the context of calamities happens at all and if learning takes place under which conditions it can be achieved and what would be required to ensure that learned cognitive and practical knowledge will endure on a societal level. The contributions of this book include various fields of scientific research: history, sociology, geography, psychoanalysis, psychiatry, development studies and political studies as well as disaster research and disaster risk reduction research.

The Invention of a European Development Aid Bureaucracy V. Dimier, 2014-07-22 A comprehensive analysis of how European development policy was shaped, this book explores the role of former colonial officials in shaping the policy agenda and explores this example of recycled empire. Dimier argues that this post-colonial agenda only changed as a result of pressure from the OECD and World Bank in the 1980s and 1990s.

ICTs for Inclusive Communities in Developing Societies Darelle van Greunen, Jacques Steyn, 2015-11-25 Several decades of international aid predominantly granted by the highly developed world, the haves for the use of ICT in developing regions known by several labels such as the have-nots, bottom of the pyramid, the south or some time ago the third world, have passed but the holy grail of turning these societies into the ideals defined by the donors is still elusive. Previously, the emphasis was on top-down approaches in this endeavour. Now, priority is increasingly given to bottom-up approaches putting the targeted communities first using methods such as co-creation and living labs. Information and Communication Technologies for Development (ICT4D) is still a domain in search of a common ground. The many different perspectives from diverse ideologies, paradigms and theoretical perspectives here lead to an interesting debate but meanwhile, agents of social change are doing their best to change communities ostensibly for the better. An ongoing endeavour, this discussion requires further investigation of the complexities of techno-societies. The contributions to this volume range from explorations of theory, models and methods to investigations into the practical implementation of ICT in communities covering the characteristics of social groups and different generations and gender issues as well as its applications in education and health. As such, the contributions in this book will inform continuing debates concerning the role of ICT in developing communities on the wrong side of all the technical and social divides in human societies.

Rethinking Development Geographies Marcus Power, 2004-08-02 Development as a concept is notoriously imprecise, vague and presumptuous. Struggles over the meaning of this fiercely contested term have had profound implications on the destinies of people and places across the globe Rethinking Development Geographies offers a stimulating and critical introduction to the study of geography and development In doing so it sets out to explore the spatiality of development thinking and practices The book highlights the geopolitical nature of development and its origins in Empire and the Cold War It also reflects critically on the historical engagement of geographers with the Tropics the Third World and the South The dominant economic and political philosophies that shape the policies and perspectives of major institutions are discussed The interconnections between globalization and development are highlighted through an examination of local national and transnational resistance to various forms of development The text provides an accessible introduction to the complex and confusing world of contemporary global development Informative diagrams cartoons and case studies are used throughout While exploring global geographies of economic and political change Rethinking Development Geographies is also grounded in a concern with people and places the view from below the views of women and the view from the South

Negotiating Trade in Uncertain Worlds Clara Weinhardt, 2019-11-22 This book shows how a constructivist account of bargaining sheds new light on the emergence of impasse situations in international trade negotiations It uncovers the subtle ways in which misperceptions and the problems of overcoming them complicate negotiations It brings to the forefront misperceptions and sticky beliefs that complicate trade talks between the Global South and the Global North Empirically the book examines the recent negotiations of Economic Partnership Agreements between the European Union EU and West Africa 2002 2014 In doing so it enriches the study of negotiations of development oriented trade agreements in the context of a major North South partnership By exploring a constructivist perspective on game theory the author uncovers how the repeated impasse situations followed from the different games both sides expected to be playing The author shows that such misperceptions endured because they reflected deep seated normative disagreements not only over the effects of neo liberal trade reforms but also over how to structure EU Africa post colonial trade relations in the 21st century Comparing and contrasting both sides divergent perspectives helps us to see how trade negotiations are never just about economic interests but also about the re negotiation of the values and ideas that structure state interaction The book draws on a large set of qualitative primary data on EU West Africa trade negotiations Negotiating trade in uncertain worlds will be of great interest to students and scholars of international relations international political economy international trade international negotiations EU external relations EU Africa cooperation economic diplomacy international relations of the developing world and North South cooperation
