Image Databases In North America:

Image Databases in North America Marlene E. Gordon,1994-11-01 Intelligent Image Databases Yihong Gong,1997-10-31 Intelligent Image Databases Towards Advanced Image Retrieval addresses the image feature selection issue in developing content based image retrieval systems The book first discusses the four important issues in developing a complete content based image retrieval system and then demonstrates that image feature selection has significant impact on the remaining issues of system design Next it presents an in depth literature survey on typical image features explored by contemporary content based image retrieval systems for image matching and retrieval purposes The goal of the survey is to determine the characteristics and the effectiveness of individual features so as to establish guidelines for future development of content based image retrieval systems Intelligent Image Databases Towards Advanced Image Retrieval describes the Advanced Region Based Image Retrieval System ARBIRS developed by the authors for color images of real world scenes They have selected image regions for building ARBIRS as the literature survey suggests that prominent image regions along with their associated features provide a higher probability for achieving a higher level content based image retrieval system A major challenge in building a region based image retrieval system is that prominent regions are rather difficult to capture in an accurate and error free condition particularly those in images of real world scenes To meet this challenge the book proposes an integrated approach to tackle the problem via feature capturing feature indexing and database query Through comprehensive system evaluation it is demonstrated how these systematically integrated efforts work effectively to accomplish advanced image retrieval Intelligent Image Databases Towards Advanced Image Retrieval serves as an excellent reference and may be used as a text for advanced courses on the topic Image Databases Vittorio Castelli, Lawrence D. Bergman,2004-04-07 The explosive growth of multimedia data transmission has generated a critical need for efficient high capacity image databases as well as powerful search engines to retrieve image data from them This book brings together contributions by an international all star team of innovators in the field who share their insights into all key aspects of image database and search engine construction Readers get in depth discussions of the entire range of crucial image database architecture indexing and retrieval transmission display and user interface issues And using examples from an array of disciplines the authors present cutting edge applications in medical imagery multimedia communications earth science remote sensing and other major application areas Medical Image Databases Stephen T.C. Wong,1998-09-30 Medical Image Databases covers the new technologies of biomedical imaging databases and their applications in clinical services education and research Authors were selected because they are doing cutting edge basic or technology work in relevant areas This was done to infuse each chapter with ideas from people actively investigating and developing medical image databases rather than simply review the existing literature The authors have analyzed the literature and have expanded on their own research They have also addressed several common threads within their generic topics These include system architecture standards information retrieval data modeling image visualizations query languages telematics data mining and decision supports The new ideas and results reported in this volume suggest new and better ways to develop imaging databases and possibly lead us to the next information infrastructure in biomedicine Medical Image Databases is suitable as a textbook for a graduate level course on biomedical imaging or medical image databases and as a reference for researchers and practitioners in industry

Perceptual Metrics for Image Database Navigation Yossi Rubner, Carlo Tomasi, 2001 With the increasing number of images available electronically automatic retrieval systems are becoming essential This book introduces an absolute prerequisite for any such system a metric called the Earth Mover's Distance EMD for comparing images in terms of their appearance This metric describes the amount of work that is necessary to transform one image into another in a precisely defined mathematical sense and in a flexible and perceptually meaningful manner An efficient linear programming algorithm enables the computation of this metric fast enough to be used for the interactive retrieval of images from large repositories The perceptual properties of the EMD and the speed of its computation lead to database navigation a new paradigm for interacting with a repository of images When navigating the user is shown a very large number of images in response to a query The EMD between pairs of images together with a multidimensional scaling method allows these images to be displayed so that similar images appear near to each other on the computer screen In this way the user can grasp at a glance what is returned and can reach the images of interest with a small number of mouse clicks Extensive benchmark evaluations and example retrieval systems show the usefulness of the EMD and the advantages of image database navigation This book will be of interest to researchers industrial professionals and graduate and post graduate students in the fields of Computer Vision Image Processing Data Mining Digital Libraries Psychophysics Computer Science Electrical Engineering
