Ritigaula Somangshu Mukherji, 2021-10-26 This book authored by the late Princeton music scholar Harold Powers discusses a single Indian raga called Ritigaula. Ritigaula's pitch structure conventions surrounding its performance and its treatment in historical Indian music treatises are comprehensively described. Powers's unique approach to theorizing raga examines raga structure and meaning in this monograph too from the perspective of musical communication and discourse. From within this perspective Powers shares his thoughts about music's connection to language and the relationship between raga expression and linguistic communication.

Machine Music Morten Riis, 2016-05-13 Sound and music is a product of technology. Whether we are enjoying a concert working in a sound studio or listening with headphones on technical equipment lays the foundation of our musical experience. In Machine Music: A Media Archaeological Excavation, postdoc composer and PhD Morten Riis tunes into normally undetected layers of music. Musical machines be it ancient or modern instruments, computers, loudspeakers or amplifiers are not just silent mediators of sounds. They all have their own unique voices. We simply have to learn to listen to them.

Experimental Music Since 1970 Jennie Gottschalk, 2016-08-11 What is experimental music today? Recent attempts to define or identify examples of experimental music have been cautious and subjective, offering very little guidance to anyone with an interest in this field of activity. Is experimental music a historical event that refers only to John Cage and his influence or does it have a greater spread and longevity? The development of this musical practice over the last 45 years merits a fresh definition and discussion. An experimental approach is not identifiable in specific sounds or techniques and its scope would be drastically limited if it were judged on the basis of social or aesthetic groupings or self-identifications of composers.

IMAGINARY MUSIC., 1978 Writing Against Time Michael W. Clune, 2013-01-09 For centuries a central goal of art has been to make us see the world with new eyes. Thinkers from Edmund Burke to Elaine Scarry have understood this effort as the attempt to create new forms. But as anyone who has ever worn out a song by repeated listening knows, artistic form is hardly immune to sensation-killing habit. Some of our most ambitious writers, Keats, Proust, Nabokov, Ashbery, have been obsessed by this problem. Attempting to create an image that never gets old, they experiment with virtual ideal forms. Poems and novels become workshops as fragments of the real world are scrutinized for insights and the shape of an ideal artwork is pieced together. These writers voracious in their appetite for any knowledge that will further their goal find help in unlikely places. The logic of totalitarian regimes, the phenomenology of music, the pathology of addiction and global commodity exchange furnish them with tools and models for arresting neurobiological time. Reading central works of the past two centuries in light of their shared ambition, Clune produces a revisionary understanding of some of our most important literature.

The Musical Times & Singing-class Circular, 1927 Proust's Songbook Jennifer Rushworth, 2024-06-04 In Proust's Songbook Jennifer Rushworth analyzes and theorizes the presence and role of songs in Marcel Proust's novel la recherche du temps perdu In Search of Lost Time Instead of focusing on instrumental music and large scale forms such as symphonies and opera as is common in Proust musical studies Rushworth argues for the centrality of songs and lyrics in Proust's opus Her work analyzes the ways in which the author inserted songs at key turning points in his novel and how he drew inspiration from contemporary composers and theorists of song Rushworth presents detailed readings of five moments of song in la recherche du temps perdu highlighting the songs significance by paying close attention to their lyrics music composers and histories Rushworth interprets these episodes through theoretical reflections on song and voice drawing particularly from the works of Reynaldo Hahn and Roland Barthes She argues that songs in Proust's novel are connected and resonate with one another across the different volumes yet also shows how song for Proust is a solo amateur and intimate affair In addition she points to Proust's juxtapositions of songs with meditations on the notion of mauvaise musique bad music to demonstrate the existence of a blurred boundary between songs that are popular and songs that are art According to Rushworth a song for Proust has a special relation to repetition and memory due to its typical brevity and that song itself becomes a mode of resistance in la
