T. Ammerman, Michel Hersen, 2013-11-11 This book could not have been conceptualized or published 20 years ago Indeed it is doubtful that we could have organized the material for this handbook 10 years ago Over the last 20 years however the painstaking efforts of many clinical researchers working with a variety of resistive psychopathologies have resulted in specific psychotherapies and pharmacotherapies that are effective with a significant proportion of patients at least for some of the disorders Much clinical research remains to be carried out in the forthcoming decades But now that we are nearing the 21st century at least some statement about efficacy can be made In 1967 Gordon Paul succinctly stated that the ultimate goal of treatment outcome research is to determine What treatment by whom is most effective for this individual with that specific problem and under which set of circumstances p 111 At that time empirical evaluations of psychosocial and pharmacologic treatments were few and far between Methodological strategies for determining treatment effectiveness were also in the formative stage as exemplified by introduction of control groups that received inactive interventions i e placebo and the relatively recent practice of comparing two or more treatments in addition to placebo In the almost three decades since Paul's oft quoted dictum both the quantity and the quality of treatment outcome research with adults have increased dramatically Clinical Exercise Science Andrew Scott, Christopher Gidlow, 2016-01-22 Clinical Exercise Science is an

Taking a social constructionist perspective Watts considers the ways in which gender impacts upon health in all its elements including access technology professionalisation health promotion and health as an important sector of the labour market. She discusses gender as a developing and diversified category exploring ideas about masculinity and the fluidity of gender boundaries in determining individual identity. Chapters that follow discuss men's and women's health ideology of gender and health specifically exploring different social norms and ideas about male and female health and the dominant ideological association between femaleness and caring working for health with particular focus on the gendered interplay of caring and curing roles technology and changes to gender health and healthcare health promotion as a gendered activity and finally the importance of introducing an intersectional approach beyond gender to articulate a deeper understanding of health in a postmodern context. The concluding chapter draws together these themes to underscore the importance of placing gender at the centre of health and health care delivery to fully take account of both the different life and health experiences of men and women and the gendered dimensions of working in health care. Health Care for People with Intellectual and Developmental Disabilities across the Lifespan I.
