Methodology, Theory, and Knowledge in the Managerial and Organizational Sciences Eliezer Geisler, 1999-06-30 Geisler argues that the over reliance on co variation techniques and statistical methods instead of process approach and in depth analysis produces meaningless knowledge in the managerial and organizational sciences and indeed throughout all the social sciences He offers instead a new and different approach based on the notion of what he calls dynamic morphologies an architecture of slicing complex phenomena This way it is possible to explain many inconsistencies in research findings and to find a cohesive systematic outlook on research research design and knowledge creation Intellectually challenging and following in the footsteps of Kuhn Argyris and Popper Geisler s approach is frankly revolutionary in research design and contains its own notions terms and nomenclature A provocative discussion for academics and others well trained in the organizational managerial and social sciences Geisler s dynamic morphologies provide a means to research complex phenomena and gain knowledge about them They are composed of a chain of events combined logically and temporally and a method by which this process is studied Geisler also contends that knowledge in the organizational and managerial sciences is only viable when it describes and explains the complex higher order phenomena Therefore theory building and research in these fields must be linked to higher order constructs and the phenomena that they attempt to explain This is the central notion of amplitude that Geisler introduces and describes His book also criticizes the evolutionary epistemology view of knowledge creation and contends that knowledge in all of these fields of study in general is not evolutionary but instead cumulative and expansive one that is essential for developing critical thinking skills and carrying out orders within legal confines Police Intelligence Totality of Circumstances is an indispensable resource for helping students and officers to collect and assess information Whether it is verbal or nonverbal information ciphered messages or using different bases for numeric communication individuals in criminal justice should learn to think outside the box to collect and understand available information paribus due to this emphasis on familism which had a direct impact on organizational design and an indirect influence through its negative association with company size which in turn significantly covaried with organizational design This family based ownership model was positively associated with organizational effectiveness As regards contingency theory the traditional fit hypotheses could not be rejected In addition less effective companies were not necessarily in misfit Appropriate structure together with an optimizing planning style and firm age were positively associated with performance Managerial recommendations were codified in a CHINA c strategy framework for high effectiveness
