New Princedoms Peter Herrmann,2012-11 This book gathered contributions by the editor Peter Herrmann and Wendy Earles and Brigitte Kratzwald Rather than looking in a specialist perspective at different aspects of current social analysis it aims to provide a transverse insight into issues of a new world order Economic and political changes are seen as interwoven in such a way that they mark a system shift Although catchy terms as re feudalisation are tempting they need to be developed in a historical analysis that brings economic and political shifts comprehensively together The present book one of three volumes Writings on Philosophy and Economy of Power does not claim to be conclusive However it presents the view on some core issues The fundamental view is that we find a shift in the understanding of political regulation that is grounded in a change of the economic formation However rather than focusing on the thesis of a simple take over by capitalism or neo liberalism it is suggested that such development actually means that development is to a large extent actually shifting away from capitalism Its basic structures determined by economic laws are replaced by politically dominated mechanisms of control and steering As much as feudal structures had been pre capitalist in their character we are now facing a post

Community Capitalism Ron Kitchens, 2008 Perhaps you thought it was fantasy Perhaps you thought it was a ruse Perhaps you thought it was the actions of an immature heart and love that had yet to be educated by reality Wrong Actually your first answer was right Now you have to be unschooled and learn love all over again and you might want to start here at that foundation of love But you forgot after all it only lasted a couple of seconds a couple of days and then that place that those eyes took you disappeared like a mirage You no longer have what it takes to graduate to love s stage seven Don t worry Illuminations will take you back If infatuation is oft the cornerstone with which we set the foundation of love why do we throw away that foundation when we build the school of our convictions as to what love is But remember when we thought a love was perfect and we thought that love was supreme Remember when we thought love would find ourselves in a perfect plot and we could reside there forever Remember when love was the most beautiful thing in existence and so was our love Might I ask what is wrong with that And if there is nothing wrong with that why isn t it considered right If the school of love in which the world learns fails and we are unable to graduate to love s better vision If indeed we fail to take our love to a higher grade perhaps we ought to find a better school Love instinctively knows better and the new foundation upon which love will be reschooled goes back to our original convictions when we thought love was perfect that love was supreme that love would deliver and that love is perfect There is a reason for that original conviction and it is because love is Insights Into the Nature of Hybridity in Social Innovation and Entrepreneurship Alfonso H. Molina,2010 This book seeks to contribute to the understanding of social innovation and entrepreneurship by developing a conceptual instrument to help characterize different social innovations from the viewpoint of their hybridity This theoretical development builds on insights accumulated in the existing literature on social innovation and entrepreneurship The main focus however is on social innovation Decent Work Judit Csoba,2015-04-27 Decent work as a key category of social integration has undergone significant changes with respect to its concept and its content during the past centuries The dual nature of work punishment and reward can be traced throughout all eras of universal history but it depends mainly on the economic social and ideological context whether it is one or the other of these two aspects that becomes dominant for most members of the society Today almost half of the citizens who are of active working age do not have access to work in the traditional sense The fact that decent work has been losing ground in society is a source of many conflicts Because of a lack of alternative paradigms that would be acceptable for the majority of society many believe that we must make an attempt to restore the authority of the work paradigm as well as its role in the organisation of society i e to realise full employment The author presents an overview of the attempts that have been undertaken during the past decades in Europe and in Hungary to ensure employment which has been defined as the crucial precondition of a welfare state In recent years most European countries have turned away from the welfare model which emphasises welfare payments and services toward workfare models focusing on work Workfare programs are based on direct reciprocity and assume that citizens possess primary responsibilities in addition to their social rights in return for welfare benefits they are expected to provide compensation within a relatively short period of time In this monograph the author is looking for an answer to the question whether reducing the existing welfare benefits forcing the unemployed to work and thereby creating full employment constitute a real alternative under the current economic and social circumstances Official Gazette of the United States Patent and Trademark Office ,2000

Our War on Ourselves Willem H. Vanderburg, 2011-11-12 Our approach to knowing and doing is based on delegating physical phenomena to physicists biological phenomena to biologists social phenomena to sociologists economic phenomena to economists and so on This approach to knowledge and practice works very well when one category of phenomena dominates as in mechanical and technical systems but does not work when many categories of phenomena make significant contributions as in the biological and cultural spheres As a result our civilization succeeds in its scientific and technical endeavours yet fails in dealing with communities and ecosystems Following his groundbreaking Labyrinth of Technology and Living in the Labyrinth of Technology Willem H Vanderburg's Our War on Ourselves explores the type of war we have unleashed on our lives by emphasizing discipline based processes The work also illuminates how we can achieve a more balanced livable and sustainable future by combining technical and cultural perspectives in our educational and institutional settings
