ABSTRACT

Objectives: This exploratory study aims at investigating the effort, struggle, and inner drive of immigrants toward sU.S. citizenship and higher socio-economic status (SES).

Methods: This is a multiple case study with a qualitative approach. With non-probability convenience sampling, we selected five cases from the Los Angeles area for in-depth interviews. A thematic method along with the four-element framework on sense of community by McMillan and Chavis (1986) were employed for data analysis.

Results: Although each participant's journey towards citizenship and higher SES is unique, the cross-case data synthesis presented a clear uniformity of deep desire and willing sacrifices for a sense of community among the participants.

Conclusion: While citizenship and SES can be seen as enticing rewards or even "prize strings" for which immigrants are willing to work hard, what immigrants truly long for is a sense of community. It is this longing that drives immigrants to overcome adversities and rise up to build strong communities anywhere they settle.

Keywords: partnership, multiple case study, sense of community, immigrants, U.S. citizenship, socio-economic status

INTRODUCTION

"Immigrant" or "foreign-born" are sometimes used synonymously to define individuals living in the United States who were not U.S. citizens at birth (Camarota, 2007). Immigration as a controversial topic has been argued at length with vast amounts of data and evidence presented by both "for" and "against" scholars. Among the published work, much of the research was contributed to the economic and political effects in relation to immigrants' attainment of citizenship or socio-economic mobility. However, immigration

Highlights

- This is a youth-led research study. Youth researchers took all initiatives and made all decisions throughout the entire research process.
- The multiple case study design enables cross-case synthesis and analytical generalization while grounding the investigation of the research topic in real-life context.
- This study promotes the notion that while immigration has become a divisive issue, immigrants are here to unite and to develop communities.

at its core is a social-emotional issue (Deaux, 2006; Kaivo-oja, 2014; Turner, 2016). To recognize it as so, in this study we will deemphasize the uses of political and economic means and measurements. Instead, we will explore this topic from a community perspective. Through the multiple case study, we aim to answer the following research questions: To what extent are citizenship and SES significant to immigrants? Are they the real drive of the ever-increasing immigrant population?

Immigrant Labour in Kuwait Abdulrasool Al-Moosa, Keith McLachlan, 2017-08-17 Kuwait has among the highest levels of personal incomes in the Middle East and the best oil reserves to production ratios of all the exporting states Its good material fortune is offset by its political precariousness engendered by Kuwaiti nationals forming a minority and a heavy dependency on immigrants to sustain the economy Deep feelings of insecurity have led to calls in Kuwait for an end to immigration and the repatriation of foreign residents of the state This book first published in 1985 analyses the degree of dependency of Kuwait on an alien working population from the results of a unique survey undertaken among the crucial family accompanied segment of the immigrant workforce The authors suggest new approaches to the evaluation of the utility of the foreigners to the local economy that might help to stave off a mounting internal crisis

Migration and Language Education in Southern Europe Eleni Griva, Maria Moutzi, Marina Mattheoudakis, 2021-10-04 The entry of migrant populations to Europe and especially to countries of Southern Europe is expected to drastically change the make up of state school classes as learners of various ages ethnic backgrounds and mother tongues are going to co exist within the same educational setting In Greece in particular the landscape of education has already started changing as a significant number of immigrant students have joined mainstream classrooms This volume maps this new educational reality and its challenges as Greek teachers are required with very limited training and resources to address those students educational and socio emotional needs All chapters are authored by Greek researchers who are actively involved in the study of refugees and immigrants education their needs and their educational linguistic and political rights Despite the fact that education for immigrants and refugees has become the focus of much research on a global level the ongoing rapid rise of immigrant populations in Southern Europe has not been adequately researched This book consequently meets the need for further research and empirical studies in this field

Russian Jews on Three Continents Noah Lewin-Epstein, Paul Ritterband, Yaacov Ro'i, 2013-10-31 In the past twenty years almost three quarters of a million Russian Jews have emigrated to the West Their presence in Israel Europe and North America and their absence from Russia have left an indelible imprint on these societies The emigrants themselves as well as those who stayed behind are in a struggle to establish their own identities and to achieve social and economic security In this volume an international assembly of experts historians sociologists demographers and politicians join forces in order to assess the nature and magnitude of the impact created by this emigration and to examine the fate of those Jews who left and those who remained Their wide ranging perspectives contribute to creating a variegated and complex picture of the recent Russian Jewish Emigration

Getting Saved in America Carolyn Chen, 2014-08-31 What does becoming American have to do with becoming religious Many immigrants become more religious after coming to the United States Taiwanese are no different Like many Asian immigrants to the United States Taiwanese frequently convert to Christianity after immigrating But Americanization is more than simply a process of Christianization Most Taiwanese American Buddhists also say they converted only after arriving in the United States even though Buddhism is a part of Taiwan s dominant religion By examining the experiences of Christian and Buddhist Taiwanese Americans Getting Saved in America tells a story of how people become religious by becoming American and how people become American by becoming religious Carolyn Chen argues that many Taiwanese immigrants deal with the challenges of becoming American by becoming religious Based on in depth interviews with Taiwanese American Christians and Buddhists and extensive ethnographic fieldwork at a Taiwanese Buddhist temple and a Taiwanese Christian church in Southern California Getting Saved in America is the first book to compare how two religions influence the experiences of one immigrant group By showing how religion transforms many immigrants into Americans it sheds new light on the question of how immigrants become American

From Immigrants to Ethnic Minority Lorna Chessum, 2017-07-05 While there is an extensive sociological literature concerning race relations racial discrimination and the process of migration this has tended to focus on snapshots at a given moment in time There are few historical accounts of the development of black communities in Britain This book will be the first social history of a black community in modern times which attempts to weave many aspects of life together to give a more comprehensive understanding of the lives of black people in Britain The book will address the way peoples lives are constructed through racialized identities and how African Caribbean people in Leicester relate to the wider community It provides an important contribution to the debate concerning the social class profile of different ethnic groups The work is gendered throughout and discusses the different nature of the experiences of men and women The 1991 census shows Leicester to have the highest proportion of ethnic minority residents of any city outside London however compared to other cities with black and Asian communities it has received little attention from academics The present study charts the development of Leicester s African Caribbean community from its origins in the Second World War to 1981 and its changing construction from immigrants to ethnic minority

Narrative Identity Trevor Castor, 2021-11-09 Narrative Identity is the product of seven years of research among Muslim immigrants living in America This book will help you to understand the role that stories have in shaping how we see the world ourselves and others by exploring the process of identity formation for one of the most feared and least understood Muslim peoples in the world the Pashtun The Pashtun are most often associated with the Taliban and for harboring Osama bin Laden after the attacks on 9 11 For centuries these people have been accustomed to war and ethnic tribal and religious violence in the regions of Afghanistan and Pakistan As a result the Pashtun are also one of the largest ethnic groups migrating throughout the West More recently their identity has been reduced to the violent actions of Islamic terrorism committed by a few Pashtun immigrants living in Western nations This study explores the various factors that impact identity formation for Pashtun immigrants including transnationalism social media and the ongoing negative media attention concerning Islam and Muslims This book helps readers understand the nuances of identity formation which are critical to consider in order to avoid the crude categorizations so often associated with identity politics
