Implicit And Explicit Mental Processes:

Implicit and Explicit Mental Processes Kim Kirsner, Craig Speelman, Murray Maybery, Angela O'Brien-Malone, Mike Anderson, 2013-06-17 The need for synthesis in the domain of implicit processes was the motivation behind this book Two major questions sparked its development Is there one implicit process or processing principle or are there many Are implicit memory learning and expertise skill acquisition and automatic detection simply different facets of one general principle or process or are they distinct processes performing very different functions This book has been designed to cast light on this issue Because it is impossible to make sense of implicit processes without taking into account their explicit counterparts consideration is also given to explicit memory learning and expertise and controlled processing The chapter authors consider principles processes and models which stand above a wealth of data collected to evaluate models designed specifically to account for data from a specific paradigm or even more narrowly from a specific experimental task The motivation behind this approach is the proposition that modeling is possible for a much broader data domain even though there may be some cost where specific tasks are concerned The aim of this book is to treat synthesis as the objective and to approach this objective by collecting and discussing phenomena which although they are drawn from diverse areas of psychological science touch a single issue concerning the distinction between explicit and implicit processes

Zaner, 2012-12-06 Under the title of Phenomenology Continuation and Criticism the group of essays in this volume are presented in honor of Dorion Cairns on his 70th birthday The contributors comprise friends colleagues and former students of Dorion Cairns who each in his own way share the interest of Dorion Cairns in Husserlian phenomenology That interest itself may be best defined by these words of

Edmund Husserl Philosophy wisdom sage is the philosopher's quite personal affair. It must arise as his wisdom as his self-acquired knowledge tending toward universality, a knowledge for which he can answer from the beginning. It is our belief that only in the light of these words can phenomenology and phenomenological philosophy be continued but always reflexively critically. For over forty years Dorion Cairns has through his teaching and writing selflessly worked to bring the idea expressed by Husserl's words into self-conscious exercise. In so doing he has to the benefit of those who share his interest confirmed Husserl's judgement of him that he is among the rare ones who have penetrated into the deepest sense of my phenomenology who had the energy and persistence not to desist until he had arrived at real understanding. The

A Legacy for Living Systems Jesper Hoffmeyer, 2008-02-01 Gregory Bateson's contribution to 20th century thinking has appealed to scholars from a wide range of fields dealing in one way or another with aspects of communication and epistemology. A number of his insights were taken up and developed further in anthropology, psychology, evolutionary biology, and communication theory. But the large transdisciplinary synthesis that in his own mind was his major contribution to science received little attention from the mainstream scientific communities. This book represents a major attempt to revise this deficiency. Scholars from ecology, biochemistry, evolutionary biology, cognitive science, anthropology, and philosophy discuss how Bateson's thinking might lead to a fruitful reframing of central problems in modern science. Most important, perhaps Bateson's bioanthropology is shown to play a key role in developing the set of ideas explored in the new field of biosemiotics. The idea that organismic life is indeed basically semiotic or communicative lies at the heart of the biosemiotic approach to the study of life. The only book of its kind, this volume provides a key resource for the quickly growing substratum of scholars in the biosciences philosophy and medicine who are seeking an elegant new approach to exploring highly complex systems

Vallet, Benoit Riou, Lionel Brunel, Nicolas Vermeulen, 2016-04-15 We interact with our environment through perception and action Perception is based on sensory components while actions are based on motor components It is commonly accepted that these sensorimotor components constitute the foundation of knowledge i e percepts and concepts action and emotion However whether or not these components remain part of knowledge action and emotion is still being debated see Glenberg Witt Corveleyn Lopez Moliner Vermeulen et al 2013 Despite the accumulation of empirical evidence showing that perception memory action and emotion interact together less is known about the dynamics of these interactions It remains to precise the temporal dynamic when these interactions occur the neural underlying networks and the factors that modulate these interactions The present research topic focuses on the dynamic relationship between present and absent sensorimotor components across perception memory action and emotion in a grounded cognition perspective This research topic aims 1 to demonstrate the validity of the embodied cognition theories 2 to highlight the dynamics of emergence of conceptual knowledge action and emotion 3 to provide a comprehensive state of the art theoretical explanation and or models
