Scientific Foundations of Psychological Research

The Quest for Knowledge

Since the time immemorial, man has been faced with a great desire of finding the truth on the things that are happening inside him and around his environment. He has been bombarded with a lot of questions that need to be answered and confronted with a multitude of problems that he has to immediately seek solutions. For this reason, man has to discover new knowledge and, in the process, he has to develop methods, techniques and approaches in discovering and creating new knowledge.

tertiary qualities in perception such as symmetry and elegance which are just as directly given as are the perceived colours red green or yellow It is interesting to note that Merleau Ponty has made considerable use of Gestalt ideas in his Phenomenology of Perception One of the commonest reasons given by linguistic philosophers for not making direct use of the results of psychological research although philosophers are usually willing to accept the first hand results of physical science is that philosophical accounts of perception and thinking are concerned with analysing the language in which these reports are made that is to say they are second order enquiries Often this approach is still more restricted and ordinary linguistic usage is taken as the yardstick against which questions relating to thought and perception are to be measured The task of the philosopher is then confined to the analysis of ordinary language If he is more adventurous as some writers on philosophical psychology are he might go on to show how far the language used by psychological researchers falls short of the paradigms of common sense

Psychological Research in the Classroom Teresa M. Amabile, Margaret L. Stubbs, 2016-06-06

Max Horkheimer and the Foundations of the Frankfurt School John Abromeit, 2011-10-10 This book is the first comprehensive intellectual biography of Max Horkheimer during the early and middle phases of his life 1895 1941 Drawing on unexamined new sources John Abromeit describes the critical details of Horkheimer's intellectual development This study recovers and reconstructs the model of early Critical Theory that guided the work of the Institute for Social Research in the 1930s Horkheimer is remembered primarily as the co author of Dialectic of Enlightenment which he wrote with Theodor W Adorno in the early 1940s But few people realize that Horkheimer and Adorno did not begin working together seriously until the late 1930s or that the model of Critical Theory developed by Horkheimer and Erich Fromm in the late 1920s and early 1930s differs in crucial ways from Dialectic of Enlightenment Adorno highlights the ways in which Horkheimer's early Critical Theory remains relevant to contemporary theoretical discussions in a wide variety of fields

Fundamental Questions in Cross-Cultural Psychology Fons J. R. van de Vijver, Athanasios Chasiotis, Seger M. Breugelmans, 2011-03-17 Cross cultural psychology has come of age as a scientific discipline but how has it developed The field has moved from exploratory studies in which researchers were mainly interested in finding differences in psychological functioning without any clear expectation to detailed hypothesis tests of theories of cross cultural differences This book takes stock of the large number of empirical studies conducted over the last decades to evaluate the current state of the field Specialists from various domains provide an overview of their area linking it to the fundamental questions of cross cultural psychology such as how individuals and their cultures are linked how the link evolves during development and what the methodological challenges of the field are This book will appeal to academic researchers and post graduates interested in cross cultural research

Life-span Developmental Psychology Paul B. Baltes, Hayne W. Reese, John R. Nesselroade, 2014-01-02 What are the changes we see over the life span How can we explain them And how do we account for individual differences This volume continues to examine these questions and to report advances in empirical research within life span development increasing its interdisciplinary nature

The relationships between individual development social context and historical change are salient issues discussed in this volume as are nonnormative and atypical events contributing to life span change

Soviet Psychology John McLeish, 2015-12-22 Originally published in 1975 this title sets out to show us the differences between Soviet and other ways of thinking about nature man and society The basic factor distinguishing Soviet psychology is that it views phenomena from the perspective of a highly articulated body of theoretical assumptions and rejects the inductive eclecticism of Western psychology The theoretical framework within which Soviet psychology functions is the product of a distinctive socio political and cultural development in Russia profoundly shaped by the institutions of autocracy and Orthodox religion and the economic system of serfdom and the radical revolt which grew up in opposition to this and advocated materialism secularism and atheism This radical philosophic tradition in Russia best represented by the writings of Chernishevski fused with the doctrines of Marxism and the new science of behaviour developed by Sechenov and Pavlov to create the theoretical framework of Soviet psychology The book also analyses the discussions controversies and decrees which are at the root of the contemporary science of behaviour in the Soviet Union and points to the impressive body of empirical knowledge which has arisen Soviet Psychology is unique in presenting Soviet psychology from an inside point of view and in making us appreciate the strongly theoretical stance of Soviet psychology which Professor McLeish claims is unlikely to be much influenced by the new atmosphere of d tente
