An Immigration History of Britain Panikos Panayi, 2014-09-11 Immigration ethnicity multiculturalism and racism have become part of daily discourse in Britain in recent decades yet far from being new these phenomena have characterised British life since the 19th century While the numbers of immigrants increased after the Second World War groups such as the Irish Germans and East European Jews have been arriving settling and impacting on British society from the Victorian period onwards In this comprehensive and fascinating account Panikos Panayi examines immigration as an ongoing process in which ethnic communities evolve as individuals choose whether to retain their ethnic identities and customs or to integrate and assimilate into wider British norms Consequently he tackles the contradictions in the history of immigration over the past two centuries migration versus government control migrant poverty versus social mobility ethnic identity versus increasing Anglicisation and above all racism versus multiculturalism Providing an important historical context to contemporary debates and taking into account the complexity and variety of individual experiences over time this book demonstrates that no simple approach or theory can summarise the migrant experience in Britain Migration and Social Cohesion in the UK M. Hickman, N. Mai, H. Crowley, 2012-05-03 Based on a flagship research project for the Joseph Rowntree

Foundation's Immigration and Inclusion programme this book argues that social cohesion is achieved through people new arrivals as well as the long term settled being able to resolve the conflicts and tensions within their day to day lives in ways that they find positive and viable The Bengal Diaspora Claire Alexander, Joya Chatterji, Annu Jalais, 2015-11-06 India's partition in 1947 and the creation of Bangladesh in 1971 saw the displacement and resettling of millions of Muslims and Hindus resulting in profound transformations across the region A third of the region's population sought shelter across new borders almost all of them resettling in the Bengal delta itself A similar number were internally displaced while others moved to the Middle East North America and Europe Using a creative interdisciplinary approach combining historical sociological and anthropological approaches to migration and diaspora this book explores the experiences of Bengali Muslim migrants through this period of upheaval and transformation It draws on over 200 interviews conducted in Britain India and Bangladesh tracing migration and settlement within and from the Bengal delta region in the period after 1947 Focussing on migration and diaspora from below it teases out fascinating hidden migrant stories including those of women refugees and displaced people It reveals surprising similarities and important differences in the experience of Muslim migrants in widely different contexts and places whether in the towns and hamlets of Bengal delta or in the cities of Britain Counter posing accounts of the structures that frame migration with the textures of how migrants shape their own movement it examines what it means to make new homes in a context of diaspora The book is also unique in its focus on the experiences of those who stayed behind and in its analysis of ruptures in the migration process. Importantly the book seeks to challenge crude attitudes to Muslim migrants which assume their cultural and religious homogeneity and to humanize contemporary discourses around global migration. This ground breaking new research offers an essential contribution to the field of South Asian Studies, Diaspora Studies and Society and Culture Studies.

The World We Have Won Jeffrey Weeks, 2007-06-21. This book explores the life changes since 1945 from welfarism to the pill and from globalization to individualization. Rejecting the cultural pessimism it argues that this is a world we are increasingly making for ourselves: a world we have won.

Anti-racism in Social Work practice Angie Bartoli, 2025-02-28. Anti racism has a long history within the profession of social work and its education. Despite an agenda within higher education which promotes internationalization and practice which recognizes diversity little has been written to address the question of why black African students have a different experience from others on their social work educational journey. This book is based upon the authors experience as educators and their own research about and with black students experience of racism and otherness within social work practice and education. Radical and honest in nature it re-visits anti racism within social work practice and education from a student focused and informed perspective based on lived experience and conversations. This book will be of interest to all social work students, educators and policy makers with an interest in anti racism and diversity. It includes practical models and tried and tested tools to help the reader work through these issues. Tools that can assist students in discussing uncomfortable issues in the classroom are to be welcomed and this book is thus a valuable resource. This book offers many examples of how racism can be addressed in social work education and training. Important features of the book are the summaries of key pieces of research in each chapter as well as case studies and critical questions which provide a springboard for discussion. It offers a timely reminder that discussion about race and anti racist forms of pedagogical approaches for teaching has fallen off the agenda. It is written in an accessible style, is an engaging read and this is a welcome addition to the literature.

Dr Claudia Bernard, Goldsmiths College.

Promoting Social Cohesion Ratcliffe, Peter, Newman, Ines, 2011-05-11. This book calls for a shift in policy focus from community cohesion to social cohesion and makes a valuable source both for practitioners, researchers and students.

Migrants and Minorities Adam Luedtke, 2020-05-22. Europe stands on the brink of a new era of diversity and immigration. Although many Europeans would prefer to ignore this fact the signs are everywhere. Societies and politics are being irrevocably changed by their encounters with migrants both recent and settled. This book pinpoints the specific trends and emerging patterns that allow us to understand what these changes mean for the future of Europe. On the ground level institutions like schools and local governments have charted unique courses for dealing with diversity. And from above the institutions of Brussels become ever more important for regulating the big picture. The passage of the Lisbon

Treaty means that common EU rules on immigration will now be easier to achieve and more likely. But what exact role is played by the institutions of the EU in Brussels and how does this vary across policy areas? How are Europeans on all levels dealing with the sensitive questions raised by Islam and how are migrants and minorities dealing with the hostility and xenophobia they routinely encounter? And finally how have the experiences of different European countries in integrating their immigrants and minorities changed our comparative understanding of race, ethnicity and citizenship? These three sets of issues – EU level regulations, Islam and Xenophobia and comparative integration policy – are the topics that motivate and structure this book. Noted experts on each topic offer the latest research findings which collectively advance our understanding of how Europe will deal with diversity in the 21st Century. New Geographies of Race and Racism Claire Dwyer, Caroline Bressey, 2008. This edited collection focuses on research into youth, mixed race identities, intersections of race and ethnicity and crucially has extended the focus from visible ethnic minorities to the theorization and interrogation of whiteness. A key feature of the book is its engagement with a range of methodological approaches to examining the significance of race including ethnography, visual methodologies and historical analysis. Theories of Race and Racism Les Back, John Solomos, 2022-05-17. Theories of Race and Racism: A Reader provides an overview of historical and contemporary debates in this vital and ever evolving field of scholarship and research. Combining contributions from seminal thinkers, leading scholars and emergent voices, this reader provides a critical reflection on key trends and developments in the field. The contributions to this reader provide an overview of key areas of scholarship and research on questions of race and racism. It provides a novel perspective by bringing together readings on the key theoretical and historical processes in this area: the development of diverse theoretical viewpoints, the analysis of antisemitism, the role of colonialism and postcolonialism, feminist perspectives on race and the articulation of new accounts of the contemporary conjuncture. The contributions to this reader include classic works by the likes of W. E. B. DuBois, Stuart Hall and Frantz Fanon as well as timely pieces by contemporary scholars including Orlando Patterson, Patricia Hill Collins and Paul Gilroy. By bringing together a broad range of diverse accounts, Theories of Race and Racism: A Reader engages with various key areas of interest and is an invaluable guide for students and instructors seeking to explore issues of race and racism. Consuming St. Patrick's Day Dominic Bryan, Jonathan Skinner, 2015-10-05. There is probably no national day that has such global popularity as St. Patrick's Day. On St. Patrick's Day it is reputed that everyone is Irish. What are the factors and factions that give the day such popular appeal? Is St. Patrick's Day the same around the world in Japan, Northern Ireland and Montserrat as it is in the Republic of Ireland and the United States?
