Living Communities and Their Archaeologies in the Middle East Rick Bonnie, Marta Lorenzon, Suzie Thomas, 2023-09-29 This volume presents theoretical ideas case studies and reflective insights on community archaeology across the Middle East with contributions by scholars working in and from Iraq Israel Jordan Palestine and Syria The chapters represent a multitude of insights from contemporary public archaeology practice drawing on theoretical frameworks and discussing the realities of challenges and opportunities presented by opening up archaeological experiences to wider publics in different social and political settings In particular the volume focuses on the following three themes 1 defining and reflecting on community in community archaeology 2 which archaeologies to employ in community archaeology and 3 measuring the success and failure of community archaeology In addressing these issues the chapters reflect different historical trajectories and cultures that enable us to find similarities and differences in the theory and practice of community archaeology In more recent decades a shift has been noticed among both national authorities and foreign archaeological expeditions with more emphasis on local heritage experiences However this frequently took the form of guiding and introducing communities to their heritage Only more recently local voices have become more heard in definitions of heritage and decisions on preservation matters with more projects tying these voices into their research objectives This volume presents several projects that combine postcolonial approaches citizen participation and community work across the Middle East By focusing especially on this geographical area the volume also reflects upon the current state of public and community archaeology in this unique and complex region adding to the already rich literature from the rest of the world The Middle East has a long fascinating but also complicated history of archaeological investigation deeply entrenched in colonization and more recently in the decolonization process The involvement and social values of the associated communities have often been overlooked in academic discussions This book aims to redress that imbalance and present original research that reflects on the work of current scholars and practitioners and draws similarities and differences from diverse cultures

The Presented Past B. L. Molyneux, P. G. Stone, 2003-09-02

The Presented Past is concerned with the differences between the comparatively static well understood way in which the past is presented in schools museums and at historic sites compared to the approaches currently being explored in contemporary archaeology It challenges the all too frequent representation of the past as something finished understood and objective rather than something that is constructed and therefore open to co existing interpretations and constant re interpretation Central to the book is the belief that the presentation of the past in school curricula and in museum and site interpretations will benefit from a greater use of non documentary sources derived from archaeological study and oral histories The book suggests that a view of the past incorporating a larger body of evidence and a wider variety of understanding will help to invigorate the way history is taught The Presented Past will be of interest to teachers archaeologists cultural resource managers in fact anyone who is concerned with how the past is presented

Working as Indigenous Archaeologists George Nicholas, Joe Watkins, 2024-09-30 Working as Indigenous Archaeologists explores the often contentious relationship between Indigenous and other formerly colonized peoples and Archaeology through their own voices Over the past 35 plus years the once novel field of Indigenous Archaeology has become a relatively familiar part of the archaeological landscape It has been celebrated criticized and analyzed as to its practical and theoretical applications and its political nature No less important are the life stories of its Indigenous practitioners What has brought some of them to become practicing archaeologists or heritage managers What challenges have they faced from both inside and outside their communities And why haven't more pursued Archaeology as a vocation or avocation This volume is a collection of 60 autobiographical chapters by Indigenous archaeologists and heritage specialists from around the world some community based some academic some in other realms who are working to connect past and present in meaningful and especially personal ways As Archaeology continues to evolve there remain strong tensions between an objective science oriented evidentiary based approach to knowing the past and a more subjective relational humanistic approach informed by local values traditional knowledge and holistic perspective While there are no maps for these new territories hearing directly from those Indigenous individuals who have pursued Archaeology reveals the pathways taken Those stories will provide inspiration and confidence for those curious about what lies ahead This is an important volume for anyone interested in the present state and future of the archaeological discipline Indigenous Peoples of North America Robert J.

Muckle, 2012-02-16 Most books dealing with North American Indigenous peoples are exhaustive in coverage They provide in depth discussion of various culture areas which while valuable sometimes means that the big picture context is lost This book offers a corrective to that trend by providing a concise thematic overview of the key issues facing Indigenous peoples in North America from prehistory to the present It integrates a culture area analysis within a thematic approach covering archaeology traditional lifeways the colonial era and contemporary Indigenous culture Muckle also explores the history of the relationship between Indigenous peoples and anthropologists with rigor and honesty The result is a remarkably comprehensive book that provides a strong grounding for understanding Indigenous cultures in North America
