The Expansion of Europe Ramsay Muir, 1917     Expansion and Imperialism Henry Clay McDougal, 2016-09-23 Excerpt from Expansion and Imperialism Address Delivered by Judge H C McDougal Before the Union Veteran Patriotic League at Kansas City Missouri September 1st 1900 From the dawn of time one of the highest desires of man has been to own possess and hold lands and from the day that Abram's name was changed to Abraham and the Lord granted him the land wherein he was a stranger all the land of Canaan for an everlasting possession the chosen people of the Lord have been natural born land owners and expansionists In looking backward through the centuries history demonstrates that those nations having the highest and best types of civilization which do most to uplift upbuild and better the conditions of humanity as England Germany France Russia and later the United States wherever public interest demanded and the power was possessed have subserved that interest and exercised that power by the extension of their public domain This is but the onward march of civilization Sluggish slow dull non progressive nations as China and the like are never expansionists The plain truth however is that the question of expansion has not been so much a question of abstract right as of power and interest Will it pay Will the material interests of the country be advanced and bettered by the acquisition of new territory Have we the power and the right under the laws of war and of nations to take it If so the might has made the right and the coveted territory was absorbed This was notably true as respects the territory we acquired from Mexico in 1848 About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do

Absent-minded Imperialism Peter Riviere, 1995-12-31 This book looks at the mainsprings of imperial expansion and illustrates the grain of truth in J R Seeley's famous phrase in The Expansion of England We seem to have conquered and peopled half the world in a fit of absence of mind Peter Riviere gives a vivid account of how the British Empire at the zenith of its power was dragged reluctantly and with little thought and no clear policy into a minor border dispute with Brazil which was solved only after sending a boundary commission and an expeditionary force Centred on the Indian village of Pirara on the border between northern Brazil and British Guiana in a remote territory in the interior the story of the Anglo Brazilian border dispute reveals much about the varied and conflicting motivations of imperial expansion Zealous Protestant and Catholic mission activity attempts to end slavery and the overwhelming motivation to establish links and to define and control imperial boundaries were key aspects of the dispute This is a beautifully written and vivid anthropological and historical narrative with acute analysis of imperial expansion based upon extensive fieldwork and Foreign Office Colonial Office and missionary society records
