Experimental Astronomy Jean-Claude Pecker, 2012-12-06 Socrates knew all that was known by his contemporaries But already in the Middle Ages it was becoming difficult for a single man to have a truly encyclopedic view of all human knowledge It is true that Pico della Mirandola Pius II Leonardo da Vinci and several other great minds were thoroughly in possession of considerable knowledge and knew all that one could know except no doubt for some techniques The encyclopedists of the 18th century had to be content with an admirable survey they could not go into details and their work is a collective one the specialized science of each collaborator compensating for the insufficiencies of the others We know very well that our science of today is a science of specialists Not only is it impossible for anyone person to assimilate the totality of human knowledge it is impossible even to know ones own discipline perfectly thoroughly Each year the presses of science produce a frightening quantity of printed paper Even in very limited fields new journals are created every day devoted to extremely specialized often very narrowly defined subjects It is indeed evident that in a field whose scope extends well beyond astronomical or astrophysical research it is materially impossible to be informed of everything even with the richest of libraries at hand astronomy through Hertz's investigation of cathode rays to Trouton's attempt to harness the ether Contributors to this section are Jed Z Buchwald Giora Hon Margaret Morrison Simon Schaffer and Andrew Warwick With a lucid introduction by Ian Hacking and original articles by noted scholars in the history and philosophy of science this book is poised to become a significant source on the nature of small scale experiment in physics Phreno-mnemotechny Francis Fauvel-Gouraud, 1845

The Square Kilometre Array: An Engineering Perspective Peter J. Hall, 2006-01-19 The Square Kilometre Array SKA Project is a global project to design and construct a revolutionary new radio telescope with of order 1 million square meters of collecting area in the wavelength range from 3m to 1cm It will have two orders of magnitude greater sensitivity than current telescopes and an unprecedented large instantaneous field of view These capabilities will ensure the SKA will play a leading role in solving the major astrophysical and cosmological questions of the day see the science case at www.skatelescope.org/pages/page_astronomy.htm The SKA will complement major ground and space based astronomical facilities under construction or planned in other parts of the electromagnetic spectrum e.g. ALMA JWST ELT XEUS The current schedule for the SKA foresees a decision on the SKA site in 2006 a decision on the design concept in 2009 construction of the first phase international path under from 2010 to 2013 and construction of the full array from 2014 to 2020 The cost is estimated to be about 1000 M The SKA Project currently involves 45 institutes in 17 countries many of which are involved in nationally or regionally funded state of the art technical developments being pursued ahead of the 2009 selection of design concept This Special Issue of Experimental Astronomy provides a snapshot of SKA engineering activity around the world and is based on presentations made at the SKA meeting in Penticton BC Canada in July 2004 Topics covered include antenna concepts software signal transport and processing radio frequency interference mitigation and reports on related technologies in other radio telescopes now under construction Further information on the project can be found at www.skatelescope.org
