Intoxicating Minds

Hopeton Gray

Intoxicating Minds:

Intoxicating Minds Ciaran Regan, 2001 Intoxicating Minds is in the author's words a grand excavation of drug myth. Neither extolling nor condemning drug use, it is a story of scientific and artistic achievement, war and greed, empires and religions, and includes lessons for the future. Ciaran Regan looks at each class of drugs, describing the historical evolution of their use, explaining how they work within the brain's neurophysiology, and outlining the basic pharmacology of those substances. BOOK JACKET

Intoxicating Minds Ciaran Regan, 2001 Whether schizophrenia, depression, or anxiety, drugs are commonly prescribed by psychiatrists to repair the fragmented mind, in essence serving to improve people's contribution to society. And from the social use of caffeine and alcohol through the despair of heroin addiction to the transcendental properties of LSD, drugs continue to play a pivotal role in shaping our culture. In this book, Ciaran Regan explores the links between drugs, brains, and society through our new understanding of how the brain works. He argues that mechanisms of brain development are replayed as we store new information, and that these are significantly influenced by exposure to drugs. As these storage mechanisms are known to be defective in conditions such as schizophrenia and depression, and to be altered by exposure to drugs, his ideas provide a unique interface between pharmacology and brain function. The Unbalanced Mind

Julian P. Leff, 2001 Do defective genes give rise to defective thought? The revolution in molecular genetics has given rise to the increasing optimism that advancements in biotechnology will soon uncover the causes of all disturbances of mind and behavior. In this book, Leff, a leading psychiatrist, emphasizes what is known about the psychological, social, and cultural factors underlying mental illness. How to Build a Mind

Igor Aleksander, 2001 Igor Aleksander heads a major British team that has applied engineering principles to the understanding of the human brain and has built several pioneering machines, culminating in MAGNUS, which he calls a machine with imagination. When he asks it in words to produce an image of a banana that is blue with red spots, the image appears on the screen in seconds. The idea of such an apparently imaginative, even conscious machine seems heretical, and its advocates are often accused of sensationalism, arrogance, or philosophical ignorance. Part of the problem, according to Aleksander, is that consciousness remains ill-defined. Interweaving anecdotes from his own life and research with imagined dialogues between historical figures including Descartes, Locke, Hume, Kant, Wittgenstein, Francis Crick, and Steven Pinker, Aleksander leads readers toward an understanding of consciousness. He shows not only how the latest work with artificial neural systems suggests that an artificial form of consciousness is possible, but also that its design would clarify many of the puzzles surrounding the murky concept of consciousness itself. How to Build a Mind also examines the presentation of self in robots, the learning of language, and the nature of emotion, will, instinct, and feelings.

How Brains Make Up Their Minds Walter J. Freeman, 2000 I think, therefore I am. The legendary pronouncement of philosopher René Descartes lingers as accepted wisdom in the Western world nearly four centuries after its author's death. But does thought really come first? Who actually runs the show: we, our thoughts, or the neurons firing within our brains Walter J Freeman explores how we control our behavior and make sense of the world around us Avoiding determinism both in sociobiology which proposes that persons genes control their brains functioning and in neuroscience which posits that their brains disposition is molded by chemistry and environmental forces Freeman charts a new course one that gives individuals due credit and responsibility for their actions Drawing upon his five decades of research in neuroscience Freeman utilizes the latest advances in his field as well as perspectives from disciplines as diverse as mathematics psychology and philosophy to explicate how different human brains act in their chosen diverse ways He clarifies the implications of brain imaging by which neural activity can be observed during the course of normal movements and shows how nonlinear dynamics reveals order within the fecund chaos of brain function

Pain Patrick Wall,2002-05-07 Pain is one of medicine s greatest mysteries When farmer John Mitson caught his hand in a baler he cut off his trapped hand and carried it to a neighbor Sheer survival and logic was how he described it And strangely I didn t feel any pain How can this be We re taught that pain is a warning message to be heeded at all costs yet it can switch off in the most agonizing circumstances or switch on for no apparent reason Many scientists philosophers and laypeople imagine pain to operate like a rigid simple signaling system as if a particular injury generates a fixed amount of pain that simply gets transmitted to the brain yet this mechanistic model is woefully lacking in the face of the surprising facts about what people and animals do and experience when their bodies are damaged Patrick Wall looks at these questions and sets his scientific account in a broad context interweaving it with a wealth of fascinating and sometimes disturbing historical detail such as famous characters who derived pleasure from pain the unexpected reactions of injured people the role of endorphins and the power of placebo He covers cures of pain ranging from drugs and surgery through relaxation techniques and exercise to acupuncture electrical nerve stimulation and herbalism Pain involves our state of mind our social mores and beliefs and our personal experiences and expectations Stepping beyond the famous neurologic gate control theory for which he is known Wall shows that pain is a matter of behavior and its manifestation differs among individuals situations and cultures The way we deal with pain is an expression of individuality

Connected Steven Shaviro, 2003-10-10 In the twenty first century a network society is emerging Fragmented visually saturated characterized by rapid technological change and constant social upheavals it is dizzying excessive and sometimes surreal In this breathtaking work Steven Shaviro investigates popular culture new technologies political change and community disruption and concludes that science fiction and social reality have become virtually indistinguishable Connected is made up of a series of mini essays on cyberpunk hip hop film noir Web surfing greed electronic surveillance pervasive multimedia psychedelic drugs artificial intelligence evolutionary psychology and the architecture of Frank Gehry among other topics Shaviro argues that our strange new world is increasingly being transformed in ways and by devices that seem to come out of the pages of science fiction even while the world itself is becoming a futuristic landscape The result is that science fiction provides the most useful social theory the only form that manages to be as radical as reality itself Connected looks at how our networked environment has manifested itself in the work of J G Ballard William S Burroughs Philip K Dick William Gibson K W Jeter and others Shaviro focuses on science fiction not only as a form of cultural commentary but also as a prescient forum in which to explore the forces that are morphing our world into a sort of virtual reality game Original and compelling Connected shows how the continual experimentation of science fiction like science and technology themselves conjures the invisible social and economic forces that surround us

Memory and Emotion James L. McGaugh, 2003 Memories come in many different forms and vary substantially in strength some such as where you put your car keys can be brief while others remain in the mind forever James McGaugh a leading neurobiologist provides an accessible and thought provoking look at how we remember and why we forget Beginning with the first scientific studies of learning and ending with the latest cutting edge research he explores how memories are made and preserved why some experiences fade and disappear with time how stress hormones effect the consolidation of memory whether drugs would improve our ability to learn and what studies of extraordinary memories and disorders tell us about the workings of the brain systems involved in memory formation

Beyond 9 to 5 Sarah Norgate, 2006 In Beyond 9 to 5 Sarah Norgate investigates the psychological social and cultural influences that affect the way we regard and are affected by time Using everyday examples from around the world her intriguing analysis unravels both the mental and biological mysteries of our relationships with time and provides a clear understanding of the links among behavior brain and genes Norgate begins by musing on the origins of our obsession with punctuality the conflicting practices of rushing and taking things slow economy driven proverbs from highly industrialized nations Don't put off until tomorrow what you can do today and how they differ from beliefs and attitudes in more rural areas why some countries like Japan promote a 24/7 lifestyle while others still have trouble allowing businesses to open on Sunday and which city moves at a faster pace New York or Dublin Norgate's examination of global trends yields surprising results Norgate then considers the biological effects of irregular hours night shifts cram sessions round the clock consumption and other potentially unhealthy characteristics of modern living In addition she looks at how our relationship with time evolves throughout our lives from birth to old age tracing the connection between longevity and memory and how such conditions as Parkinson s disease addiction sensory impairment and autism change our perception of time Norgate concludes by uniting these threads to better understand the universality of our temporal landscapes An engaging mix of cultural reference and research Beyond 9 to 5 is a compelling look at what makes us human
