Difference between Data and Information

Data as Explained

The name of a student, the scores/grades of students in certain subjects or personal details of a student – these all are what we call “data”.

Information as Explained

If the data mentioned above are arranged according to alphabetical order, or as to the ranks of students, the presentation of data is called “information”.

Types of Data

Data can be apportioned into various types depending upon the value contained:

- Qualitative – when the data qualifies the characteristics of things e.g., cloudy days, bad eggs, etc.
- Quantitative – when the data quantifies the measures of things, e.g., 100 kilograms, 5 litres, etc.
- Numerical – when the data consists of integer values or real numbers (fractions)
- Character & String – when the data consists of a sequence of alphabets and special characters, e.g., names, address

Database

It is a repository of data organized in the form of rows and columns. Each row is recognized as a record and each column is considered to be a field.

For example:

An employee database may contain the following columns:

- Employee Number
- Employee Name
- Employee Designation
- Employee Address, etc.
