Java Pageant Impressions Of The 1930s:

Java Pageant H. W. Ponder, 1988 Author's accounts of life and travel in Java during the 1920s and 1930s Batik. Traces through time Fiona Kerlogue, Dagmar Pospíšilová, 2021-01-01 The batik of Java has a special place in museum textile collections and aspects of the art of batik have been discussed at length in countless publications This study based on the batik collections of the N prstek Museum raises a number of questions which have been so far underexplored How strong is the evidence for the early manufacture of batik in Java How and when did batik making become widely practised there Was it made by village women for their own use How and why did batik develop into an industry employing thousands of people filling warehouses with stock to be distributed throughout the Indonesian archipelago What was the effect of the introduction of wax printing and of aniline dyes It is often asserted that batik carries deep meaning To what extent is this really the case When did batik depicting wayang or shadow puppet figures start to be made and who for What was the role of calligraphy batiks And what was it that drew European collectors to batik in the early 20th century What local circumstances governed their choices In a series of essays this volume explores these questions drawing on contemporary sources and providing a wealth of new insights Young Soeharto David Jenkins , 2021-05-06 When a reluctant President Sukarno gave Lt Gen Soeharto full executive authority in March 1966 Indonesia was a deeply divided nation fractured along ideological class religious and ethnic lines Soeharto took a country in chaos the largest in Southeast Asia and transformed it into one of the Asian miracle economies only to leave it back on the brink of ruin when he was forced from office thirty two years later Drawing on his astonishing range of interviews with leading Indonesian generals former Imperial Japanese Army officers and men who served in the Dutch colonial army as well as years of patient research in Dutch Japanese British Indonesian and US archives David Jenkins brings vividly to life the story of how a socially reticent but exceptionally determined young man from rural Java began his rise to power an ascent which would be capped by thirty years 1968-98 as President of Indonesia the fourth most populous nation on earth Soeharto was one of Asia's most brutal most durable most avaricious and most successful dictators In the course of examining those aspects of his character this book provides an accessible highly readable introduction to the complex but dramatic and utterly absorbing social political religious economic and military factors that have shaped and which continue to shape Indonesia The Domestication of Desire Suzanne April Brenner, 2012-10-11 While doing fieldwork in the modernizing Javanese city of Solo during the late 1980s Suzanne Brenner came upon a neighborhood that seemed like a museum of a bygone era Laweyan a once thriving production center of batik textiles had embraced modernity under Dutch colonial rule only to fend off the modernizing forces of the Indonesian state during the late twentieth century Focusing on this community Brenner examines what she calls the making of the unmodern She portrays a merchant enclave clinging to its distinctive forms of social life and highlights the unique power of women in the marketplace and the home two domains closely linked to each other through local economies of production and exchange

Against the social political and economic developments of late colonial and postcolonial Java Brenner describes how an innovative commercially successful lifestyle became an anachronism in Indonesian society thereby challenging the idea that tradition invariably gives way to modernity in an evolutionary progression Brenner's analysis centers on the importance of gender to processes of social transformation In Laweyan the base of economic and social power has shifted from families in which women were the main producers of wealth and cultural value to the Indonesian state which has worked to reorient families toward national political agendas How such attempts affect women's lives and the meaning of the family itself are key considerations as Brenner questions long held assumptions about the division between domestic and public spheres in modern society

The Romance of K'tut Tantri and Indonesia Timothy Lindsey, 2008 This historiographic study of K'tut Tantri alias Vannen Walker the journalist from the Isle of Man Muriel Pearson the unhappy wife and Surabaya Sue the notorious revolutionary compares her romantic and colorful autobiography Revolt in Paradise with other versions of her past including those of her fellow Bali colonists and her revolutionary comrades as well as her foes the Dutch and various intelligence organizations These alternatives accounts of her past question the image of K'tut Tantri as hero portraying her instead as dishonest unstable egotistical and immoral Such criticisms have overshadowed proper recognition of her role in the development of modern Indonesia both as a bohemian hotelier in between wars Bali and later as propaganda broadcaster and adviser to Indonesian revolutionary leaders including Soekarno Sutomo and Syarifuddin Focusing on the nature of biography and autobiography this book analyses K'tut Tantri's self defeating battle to use history in text and film script to define her identity and reappropriate her past An examination of the use of ideas of truth and fiction in understanding the past leads to broader consideration of the nature of history and its uses Finally an attempt is made to reconcile the deconstruction of K'tut Tantri's autobiography with both an acceptance of the validity of alternative historical genres and an acceptance of the problems inherent in writing a history of a living person

Java James Robert Rush, 1996 Capturing the many diverse images and perceptions of Java recorded over the last 600 years this entertaining volume brings together accounts of this enchanting tropical island by thirty five Western travellers most of them English or American Their writings span the years from the earliest European contacts with the island beginning with the 1330 impressions of Friar Odoric to Richard Crithfield's account of his return to Java in 1985 Through their eyes we see the island transformed from a distant realm of wealth and danger into an orderly and prosperous Dutch colony and then in the twentieth century into the center piece of the Indonesian nation Over the years the Java that armchair travellers of the English speaking world came to know was largely shaped by witnesses like Thomas Stamford Raffles Alfred Russel Wallace Elizah Ruhamah Scidmore S J Perelman Frank and Helen Schreider V S Naipaul and many others With informative introductions that set each passage in context these tales have much to tell us about the West itself and about its evolving relationship with this populous South East Asian center of civilization and power and it with its people Islam: Islam, gender and family Bryan S. Turner, 2003 The Architecture of South-East Asia Through Travellers' Eyes Roxana Waterson, 1998 From the sixteenth century onwards but particularly from the nineteenth and early twentieth centuries comes a wealth of accounts written by foreigners of their experiences in South East Asia They were seafarers businessmen ambassadors or travellers for sheer pleasure or curiosity All vividly recorded their impressions of many aspects of South East Asian life Not least of these concerned the enormous diversity of indigenous and colonial architectural forms they encountered and the style of living of the people who created them From the sublime ruins of Angkor Wat the elegance of life in the colonial residences in Malaya to the bustle of burgeoning cities like Singapore the travellers of these eras evoke for us the many amazing architectural styles of the region Their often sensitive and lively observations are as fascinating to readers today as they were to their contemporaries
