Embedding Education Into Diabetes Practice M. Porta, V. Miselli, Massimo Porta, M. Trento, V. Jorgens, 2005 The current epidemics of diabetes obesity and related disorders makes lifestyle modification paramount in preventive and therapeutic interventions This volume describes the rationale history methodologies and current international recommendations that make education an integral part of modern diabetes care It also contains updated reports of results of clinical trials and or practical experiences in North America the Netherlands Germany and Italy Descriptions are given of the methods used both in general practice and in the hospital setting to train patients on among others nutrition self care and prevention of disease complications Studies on the economic impact of patient education have until now been conspicuously missing and a cost efficacy analysis of the Group Care approach developed in Italy is presented here The last chapter offers a look into the future describing how similar principles could also be embedded successfully in the care of people suffering from chronic diseases other than diabetes The present volume of Frontiers in Diabetes will be of particular interest to all health care providers involved in the daily management of patients with diabetes or other chronic diseases

Proteins, Pathologies and Politics David Gentilcore, Matthew Smith, 2018-12-13 Proteins Pathologies and Politics presents an international and historical approach to dietary change and health contrasting current concerns with how issues such as diabetes cancer vitamins sugar and fat and food allergies were perceived in the 19th and 20th centuries Though what we eat and what we shouldn't eat has become a topic of increased scrutiny in the current century the link between dietary innovation and health disease is not a new one From new fads in foodstuffs through developments in manufacturing and production processes to the inclusion of additives and evolving agricultural practices changing diet changes often promised better health only to become associated with the opposite With contributors including Peter Scholliers Francesco Buscemi Clare Gordon Bettencourt and Kirsten Gardner this collection comprises the best scholarship on how we have perceived diet to affect health The chapters consider the politics and economics of dietary change the historical actors involved in dietary innovation and the responses to it the extent that our dietary health itself a cultural construct or even a product of history This is a fascinating and varied study of how our diets have been shaped and influenced by perceptions of health and will be of great value to students of history food history nutrition science politics and sociology

Embedded Pharmacists in Primary Care George E. MacKinnon III, Nathan Lamberton, 2021-06-08 As healthcare delivery moves from a provider centric approach to a more patient centric approach systems and payers need to reimagine how care and team based care is delivered to patients and reimbursed Thus the goal should be to see the right patient by the right provider in the right place for the right price and where appropriate with the use of the right pharmaceuticals 5 P's There continues to be a reduction in physicians that are pursuing primary care roles in the United States thus exacerbating the ability to meet patient demand Most patient encounters begin with or end with the prescribing of medication Thus a future where pharmacists are embedded in primary care settings allows these pharmacists to collaborate at the point of prescribing i.e. in clinic and provides tremendous benefits to providers and patients The pharmacist workforce is educated at the doctoral level yet vastly underutilized and can assist in a collaborative approach in primary care The collection of articles in the Special Issue Embedded Pharmacists in Primary Care highlight examples of models that have included pharmacists in the ambulatory setting providing services in chronic disease management comprehensive medication management and care of specific conditions such as diabetes

Action Research for Nurses Peter McDonnell, Jean McNiff, 2015-11-09 Nurses work in complex situations with daily challenges where the needs of each patient represent unique demands Action research helps nurses to investigate their practices as reflective practitioners allowing them to ask What is going on How do we understand the existing situation How do we improve it This book supports nurses in investigating their own professional practices in order to develop the new insights and approaches embodying holistic perspectives in dialogical and relational forms of individual and organisational learning equal emphasis on processes and outcomes welcoming all participants contributions and listening to all voices developing a patient centred focus where people are involved in their own healing building communities of enquiring practices This book is intended for undergraduate student nurses qualified practising nurses in clinical settings who may or may not be engaged in formal professional education courses and nurse educators and managers

Experimental Approaches to Diabetic Retinopathy H.-P. Hammes, M. Porta, 2009-11-24 This volume sets the stage for clinical experts working with diabetic patients as well as for researchers by describing the clinical presentations of retinopathy and their anatomical and functional correlates It reviews currently available experimental models in animals The impact of retinal pericytes neuroglia and specifically Müller cells are discussed in detail The volume addresses a variety of current scientific discussions about mechanisms of damage such as growth factors and the VEGF/PEDF balance in the diabetic eye the ocular renin-angiotensin system and leukocyte interactions with the microvasculature among others Stem and progenitor cells in the retina are discussed as potential directions for future investigation The final chapters return to emerging clinical aspects including current approaches to retinopathy as a predictor of cardiovascular risk and how knowledge can be translated from bench to bedside
