As well as evaluating both application level and component level products, software engineers need to be concerned with the evaluation of development processes, engineering methods, and supplier organizations. However, both academics and practitioners are concerned about the cost and effectiveness of applying many of the existing assessment methods. One of the aims of the workshop was to address the question of justifying the use of empirical assessment and evaluation in software engineering, as well as to hear about practical experiences. Both this theme together with the other issues involved in evaluation were addressed through technical presentations and experience reports. Thus the workshop was a unique forum dedicated to the presentation and discussion of research and practical experiences addressing all aspects of empirical assessment and evaluation in software engineering. Proceedings of the 11th ACM/IEEE International Symposium on Empirical Software Engineering and Measurement Ayse Bener, 2017 Proceedings of the International Conference on Information Technology & Systems (ICITS 2018) Álvaro Rocha, Teresa Guarda, 2018-01-04 This book includes a selection of articles from the 2018 International Conference on Information Technology, organizational models and information systems, software and systems modeling, software systems architectures, applications and tools, multimedia systems and applications, computer networks, mobility and pervasive systems, intelligent and decision support systems, big data analytics and applications, human computer interaction, ethics, computers, health informatics, and information technologies in education. Proceedings of the 2002 International
