An Introduction to Systems Science John N. Warfield, 2006 This is the first book that renders a thorough discussion of systems science It draws on material from an extensive collection of external sources including several other books and a special library collection complete with videotape empirical evidence of applicability of the theory to a wide variety of circumstances This is essential because systems science must be responsive to diverse human situations of the widest difficulty and it must fill the void that the specific sciences cannot fill because these sciences are insensitive to the necessities of reconciling disparate views of multiple observers and incorporating local conditions in hypotheses that precede inductive explorations BOOK JACKET

Truth and the Absence of Fact Hartry Field, 2001-03 Hartry Field presents a selection of thirteen essays on a set of related topics at the foundations of philosophy one essay is previously unpublished and eight are accompanied by substantial new postscripts Five of the essays are primarily about truth meaning and propositional attitudes five are primarily about semantic indeterminacy and other kinds of factual defectiveness in our discourse and three are primarily about issues concerning objectivity especially in mathematics and in epistemology The essays on truth meaning and the attitudes show a development from a form of correspondence theory of truth and meaning to a more deflationist perspective The next set of papers argue that a place must be made in semantics for the idea that there are questions about which there is no fact of the matter and address the difficulties involved in making sense of this both within a correspondence theory of truth and meaning and within a deflationary theory Two papers argue that there are questions in mathematics about which there is no fact of the matter and draw out implications of this for the nature of mathematics And the final paper argues for a view of epistemology in which it is not a purely fact stating enterprise This influential work by a key figure in contemporary philosophy will reward the attention of any philosopher interested in language epistemology or mathematics

Aesthetics and the Sciences of Mind Gregory Currie, Matthew Kieran, Aaron Meskin, Jon Robson, 2014 How far should philosophical accounts of the value and interpretation of art be sensitive to the scientific approaches used by psychologists sociologists and evolutionary thinkers A team of experts urge different answers to this question and explore how empirical inquiry can shed light on problems traditionally regarded as philosophical

The Criminalization of European Cartel Enforcement Peter Whelan, 2014-08-07 Cartel activity is prohibited under EU law by virtue of Article 101 1 of the Treaty on the Functioning of the European Union Firms that violate this provision face severe punishment from those entities responsible for enforcing EU competition law the European Commission the national competition authorities and the national courts Stiff fines are regularly imposed on firms by these entities such firm focused punishment is an established feature of the antitrust enforcement landscape within the EU In recent years however focus has also been placed on the individuals within the firms responsible for the cartel activity It is increasingly recognized that punishment for cartel activity should be individual focused as well as firm focused Accordingly a growing tendency to criminalize cartel activity can be observed in the EU Member States The existence of such criminal sanctions within the EU presents a number of crucial challenges that need to be met if the underlying enforcement objectives are to be achieved in practice without violating prevailing legal norms For a start given the severe consequences of a custodial sentence the employment of criminal antitrust punishment must be justifiable in principle one must have a robust normative framework rationalizing the existence of criminal cartel sanctions Second for it to be legitimate antitrust criminalization should only occur in a manner that respects the mandatory legalities applicable to the European jurisdiction in question These include the due process rights of the accused and the principle of legal certainty Finally the correct practical measures such as a criminal leniency policy and a correctly defined criminal cartel offence need to be in place in order to ensure that the employment of criminal antitrust punishment actually achieves its aims while maintaining its legitimacy These three particular challenges can be conceptualized respectively as the theoretical legal and practical challenges of European antitrust criminalization This book analyses these three crucial challenges so that the complexity of the process of European antitrust criminalization can be understood more accurately In doing so this book acknowledges that the three challenges should not be considered in isolation In fact there is a dynamic relationship between the theoretical legal and practical challenges of European antitrust criminalization and an effective antitrust criminalization policy is one which recognizes and respects this complex interaction New Perspectives on Concepts Julia Langkau, Christian Nimtz, 2010 Much recent work on concepts has been inspired by and developed within the bounds of the representational theory of the mind often taken for granted by philosophers of mind cognitive scientists and psychologists alike The contributions to this volume take a more encompassing perspective on the issue of concepts Rather than modelling details of our representational architecture in line with the dominant paradigm they explore three traditional issues concerning concepts Is mastery of a language necessary for thought Do concepts reduce to abilities Is the analysis of concepts a viable means to ascertain truths from the proverbial armchair An introductory essay provides a rough geography of key ideas and issues shaping the overall debate on concepts within contemporary philosophy Advances in Efficiency and Productivity Analysis Christopher F. Parmeter, Robin C. Sickles, 2020-10-21 The volume examines the state of the art of productivity and efficiency analysis It brings together a selection of the best papers from the 10th North American Productivity Workshop By analyzing world wide perspectives on challenges that local economies and institutions may face when changes in productivity are observed readers can quickly assess the impact of productivity measurement productivity growth dynamics of productivity change measures of labor productivity measures of technical efficiency in different sectors frontier analysis measures of performance industry instability and spillover effects The contributions in this volume focus on the theory and application of economics econometrics statistics management science and operational research related to problems in the areas of productivity and efficiency measurement Popular techniques and methodologies including stochastic frontier analysis and data envelopment analysis are represented Chapters also cover broader issues related to measuring understanding incentivizing and improving the productivity and performance of firms public services and industries
