Formative Instructional Product Evaluation Instruments And Strategies:

Formative Instructional Product Evaluation Tom E. Lawson, 1974 Blocks on the Road to Instructional Design Prescriptions Jan Elen, 1995 Using Student Feedback to Improve Learning Materials Michael B. Nathenson, Euan S. Henderson, 2018-02-06

The use of self instructional learning materials presented through a wide range of media was becoming an increasingly pervasive and important part of the educational scene at all levels from infant school to university. Much had been written both theoretical and practical about various aspects of the techniques for developing such materials. However one phase of the development process while generally recognised to be critical in producing materials of high quality and educational effectiveness had been relatively neglected in the literature. This is the phase of trying out the materials in draft form on students collecting feedback and undertaking revision in the light of the ensuing data. Based on considerable practical experience this book originally published in 1980 examines the planning and executing of the collection of feedback from students on self instructional learning materials concerned with various subject matters and presented through various media both printed and audio visual. A brief survey of the development of materials based learning is provided in order to set the use of student feedback in context and to sort out some of the terminology in common use. The main part of the book illustrates a step by step method through all the stages of the try out process from initial planning of the project to final revision of the materials. Thus a particular approach to the process of trying out draft materials is advocated which is outlined by means of a case study. Finally there is an examination of whether using student feedback to revise learning materials can actually improve their educational quality and effectiveness with particular reference to the approach described earlier. Incorporating a full bibliography this study combines a comprehensive review of what is known about this crucial phase of developing learning materials with an original how to do it guide for practitioners which has itself been subject to extensive try out.

Mastering the Instructional Design Process William J. Rothwell, H. C. Kazanas, 2011-01-06

The fourth edition of Mastering the Instructional Design Process has been completely revised and updated and is based on the instructional design competencies of the International Board of Standards of Performance and Instruction (IBSTPI). The book identifies the core competencies of instructional system design and presents them in a way that helps to develop these competencies and apply them successfully in real world settings. This comprehensive resource covers the full range of topics for understanding and mastering the instructional design process including detecting and solving human performance problems, analyzing needs, learners, work settings and work, establishing performance objectives and performance measurements, delivering the instruction effectively and managing instructional design projects successfully.
