Shari'a Wael B. Hallaq, 2009-04-16 In recent years Islamic law or Shari'a has been appropriated as a tool of modernity in the Muslim world and in the West and has become highly politicised in consequence Wael Hallaq's magisterial overview of Shari'a sets the record straight by examining the doctrines and practices of Islamic law within the context of its history and by showing how it functioned within pre modern Islamic societies as a moral imperative In so doing Hallaq takes the reader on an epic journey tracing the history of Islamic law from its beginnings in seventh century Arabia through its development and transformation under the Ottomans and across lands as diverse as India Africa and South East Asia to the present In a remarkably fluent narrative the author unravels the complexities of his subject to reveal a love and deep knowledge of the law which will inform engage and challenge the reader

Simonsohn, 2011-09-07 In A Common Justice Uriel I Simonsohn examines the legislative response of Christian and Jewish religious elites to the problem posed by the appeal of their coreligionists to judicial authorities outside their communities Focusing on the late seventh to early eleventh centuries in the region between Iraq in the east and present day Tunisia in the west Simonsohn explores the multiplicity of judicial systems that coexisted under early Islam to reveal a complex array of social obligations that connected individuals across confessional boundaries By examining the incentives for appeal to external judicial institutions on the one hand and the response of minority confessional elites on the other the study fundamentally alters our conception of the social history of the Near East in the early Islamic period Contrary to the prevalent scholarly notion of a rigid social setting strictly demarcated along confessional lines Simonsohn s comparative study of Christian and Jewish legal behavior under early Muslim rule exposes a considerable degree of fluidity across communal boundaries This seeming disregard for religious affiliations threatened to undermine the position of traditional religious elites in response they acted vigorously to reinforce communal boundaries censuring recourse to external judicial institutions and even threatening transgressors with excommunication Judge Advocate Legal Service
