International Review of Education Clive Dimmock and Allan Walker's books is a valuable addition to the overcrowded literature on leadership. This is a useful and important book because citizenship, globalization and the tensions with nationality should be the concern of all who lead any school, even monofaith, monoethnic and monolingual schools. Tim Brighouse, TES Friday. The authors offer a rigorous and systematic analysis based on careful definition, illustration and discussion, which demonstrates the importance of understanding culture, leadership and their interaction in different contexts. In doing so, they provide a powerful antidote to the simplistic export of ideas and lay foundations for a more sophisticated conceptual framework for the study of educational leadership. John West, Burnham International Leadership Centre, University of Hull. This key text in educational leadership focuses on the significance of the context and culture of schools. The book addresses the growing recognition of cultural differences between societies and the resultant differences in schooling. It also deals with vital issues relating to multicultural education and the leadership of multicultural schools. Drawing on their first-hand experience, the authors explore the differences evident in classroom teaching and learning as well as organizational leadership and management aspects of schools. They show how such differences can make over-reliance on Anglo-American approaches misleading, ineffective and restrictive. Key features of the book include a methodology to support the emerging field of international and comparative educational leadership and management in depth, comparative analysis of Anglo-American and Asian schooling and educational management, the leadership of multi-cultural schools. This book is essential reading for professionals and students of educational leadership and management as well as administrators.

School Improvement Zijian Li, Michael Williams, 2006. School improvement is at the centre of educational reform and is perceived by many as a key to social and economic advance. It contributes to determining the personal fulfilment and career paths of individual students and consequently engages the interest of parents and community members. It is an ever-present commitment of teachers and managers in schools. Policy makers and politicians at international, national and local levels devote much time and effort to their search for better schools. School improvement has also attracted the attention of researchers and scholars in many countries. They have been drawn from various disciplines and fields within the educational studies community, including psychology, sociology, history, evaluation and studies in curriculum and assessment. There is now an established body of findings from studies conducted in many contexts. This book brings together leading experts drawn from many countries and several continents, reflecting diverse approaches to educational policy and practice, evaluation and research. Variations between countries and between local communities within countries are highlighted. The possibilities and difficulties inherent in transferring evidence from one educational system at a number of levels to another are clearly discussed. What emerges from the cross-national and cross-cultural evidence are several significant threads currently under active investigation, including school structure and management, classroom organisation, school leadership, teacher training and staff development, curriculum and assessment, community involvement, lifelong learning and special provision for students with special educational needs School Improvement International Perspectives is written for national educational policy makers teachers and student teachers governing bodies and parents from various levels of schooling and university researchers and scholars

Professional Development for Leaders and Managers of Self-Governing Schools David Gamage, 2006-08-05 Current Context Currently self governing schools SGS or school based site based management SBM or local management of schools LMS identifies the individual school as the primary unit of improvement. It relies on the redistribution of decision making authority to stimulate and sustain improvements in a school. For this purpose, varying degrees of formal authority to make decisions in the domains of school's mission, goals, priorities, and school policies relating to financial, material, and human resources are not simply delegated but transferred by legislation to a representative governing body called the school council or board. Accordingly, it is the position of the principal or the head teacher, previously at the apex of the hierarchical structure of the school, which undergoes the most radical reform. Under the new concept, authority is shifted to the corporate body, that is, to the council or board, while the principal becomes an ex officio member of that body and the chief executive officer (CEO) of the school. Traditionally and legally, the principal or the head teacher was vested with the full authority for the total management of the school. But in terms of SGS or SBM, the principal becomes a partner with the representatives of other relevant stakeholders in a democratic structure. When the bureaucratic model of a school gets modified with the school governing body occupying the apex of the school hierarchy, it becomes the key power centre with legal authority.

Secrecy and Tradecraft in Educational Administration Eugenie A. Samier, 2014-02-03. During the last couple of decades, there has been an expansion in a number of related and overlapping fields producing evidence of covert activities, toxic cultures, destructive leadership styles, micropolitics, ethical problems in organisations, and administration, abusive power and authority, and many other topics of dysfunctional management and leadership studies that frequently make reference to secretive and deceptive behaviour. In this book, Eugenie A. Samier draws on a range of disciplines including education, psychology, administration, and management studies and organizational theory to provide a comprehensive examination of the ways in which organisational leaders and administrators carry out their roles in a secretive or deceptive manner. Samier presents a theory of covert administration that can be used to provide an analysis and interpretation of secretive and deceptive activity, inform decision making, both theoretically and practically, offer a means of diagnosing errant management using secretive and deceptive practices, provide a general set of guidelines for determining when clandestine activities may be legitimate and moral. Alongside a detailed presentation of the theory of covert administration, the book explores covert administration in practice, factors leading to it, and the results of attempts to combat its many forms. It will be key reading for researchers and postgraduates with an interest in the field, as well as administrators and policy makers.
