Human Embryo Experimentation In Australia:

Human Embryo Experimentation in Australia Australia. Parliament. Senate. Select Committee on the Human Embryo Experimentation Bill 1985,1986 Regulating Pre-implantation Genetic Diagnosis Sheila McLean,Sarah Elliston,2013 The successful achievement of pregnancies following pre implantation genetic diagnosis PGD was first reported in April 1990 The technology is often used for patients who are at substantial risk of conceiving a pregnancy affected by a known genetic disorder however from this technology other more controversial uses have arisen such as HLA typing to save the life of a sibling gender selection for social reasons the prevention of late onset diseases or the prevention of diseases which may be genetically predisposed to developing such as breast cancer The technology surrounding PGD is constantly developing giving rise to new and unexpected consequences that create fresh ethical and legal dilemmas Featuring internationally recognized experts in the field this book critically explores the regulation of PGD and the broader legal and ethical issues associated with it It looks at the regulatory situation in a number of jurisdictions including New Zealand Australia and the United Kingdom but it also explores a number of themes of wide significance including a historical consideration of PGD and its part in the creation of the genetic embryo as a political tool the over regulation of PGD and the ethical difficulties in handling additional unexpected medical information yielded by new technologies This book will be of particular interest to academics and students of law medicine and ethics Regulating Reproduction Robert H. Blank,1992-10-16 Examines the social context and current state of reproductive mediating technologies such as artificial insemination in vitro fertilization surrogate motherhood sex preselection DNA probes prenatal diagnosis and sterilization Making Babies: Biomedical Technologies, Reproductive Ethics, and Public Policy Inmaculada de Melo-Martín,2013-03-09 Each year roughly a million new cases of cancer appear in the US and more than 500 000 Americans die annually of premature death Although medical progress has slowed cancer mortality its incidence is increasing roughly six times faster than cancer mortality is decreasing Breast cancer in particular has been increasing about one percent each year since 1973 At least two of the factors responsible for this surge in breast cancer are women s use of medically prescribed synthetic hormones and the exposure of the entire population to chemicals such as dioxin Both exposures increase the likelihood of breast cancer Although many ethicists worry about involuntary societal imposition of chemicals such as dioxin through industrial and agricultural processes allegedly voluntary exposures also constitute both a public health problem and a biomedical ethics difficulty Physicians recommend synthetic hormones for example to women who apparently take them voluntarily In the case of in vitro fertilization doctors prescribe hormones to induce egg production and to increase the chances of reproduction for couples who are unable to have children Despite the benefits of medical technologies such as hormone stimulation and in vitro fertilization they also carry great risks The price that childless women pay for their opportunity to have children through in vitro fertilization may be their own increased risk of diseases such as breast cancer that are hormone dependent Genetic
