Good Humor, Bad Taste Giseline Kuipers, 2011-12-22 Good Humor Bad Taste is the first extensive sociological study of the relationship between humor and social background Using a combination of interview materials survey data and historical materials the book explores the relationship between humor and gender age regional background and especially humor and social class in the Netherlands The final chapter focuses on national differences exploring the differences between the American and the Dutch sense of humor again using a combination of interview and survey materials The starting point for this exploration of differences in sense of humor is one specific humorous genre the joke The joke is not a very prestigious genre in the Netherlands even less so than in the US It is precisely this lack of status that made it a good starting point for asking questions about humor and taste Interviewees generally had very pronounced opinions about the genre calling jokes their favorite kind humor but also completely devoid of humor and a form of intellectual poverty Good Humor Bad Taste attempts to explain why jokes are good humor to some bad taste to others The focus on this one genre enables Good Humor Bad Taste to have a very wide scope The book not only covers the appreciation and evaluation of jokes by different social groups and in different cultures and its relationship with wider humor styles It also describes the genre itself the history of the genre its decline in status from the sixteenth century onward and the way the topics and the tone of jokes have changed over the last fifty years of the twentieth century The Editor, 1905 The Best of Terrible Tommy and Yucky Chucky Thomas F. Shubnell, 2008-09-11 The best of Terrible Tommy and Yucky Chucky jokes quips tidbits one liners and genuine humor Two kids with rapier tongues and nasty antics wrestle with the foibles of growing up and dealing with parents teachers church friends enemies and unsuspecting strangers Truly timeless jokes and jocularity on every page

The Editor; the Journal of Information for Literary Workers, 1905 I Do Terrible Things John Goodrich, 2018-10-26 Donna doesn't know the old man with the sad face and yet there she is beating him to death with a shovel Is suppressed rage making her murder people in horrifying ways or is she some sort of latent psychopath She dreams of killing another man and then another The more people she kills the more desperate she becomes to stop herself Can she find the key and stop herself before she commits yet another gruesome murder I Do Terrible Things is a symphony of extreme horror Goodrich masterfully draws the reader in and relentlessly turns the screws Like a repeating melody each chapter broadens and deepens the main character's profound but subtle descent into madness and violence. By the time I had reached the grand guignol finale I felt as trapped in the tale as she did. Stephen Kozeniewski, author of Braineater, Jones John Goodrich will appeal to fans of Laird Barron, Mary SanGiovanni, and Peter Straub. Brian Keene: What happened to the quiet and unassuming man I thought I knew? Something demented is brimming hidden behind an unassuming innocent smile that freezes into a rictus just below the surface. He's serving up a seriously demented murder rama thrillfest with a healthy dose of splatter. Death in the most insidious ways seem to fill every page. The pace at times maddening is handled skillfully almost to the point of pain just before that wonderful release. I only hope someone this devastatingly disturbed is chained safely in his basement, his computer the only light. Monica O'Rourke, author of Suffer the Flesh. John Goodrich's new novel I Do Terrible Things proves his debut. Hag was no fluke. Beginning with a terrifying and surreal premise, this story of a woman who's a reluctant but vicious killer in her dreams ramps up into a thrilling search for the truth that ends in a way that'd make the Greek tragedians wince. Trust me, once you start this one, you aren't going to want to sleep until it's finished. Bracken MacLeod, author of Come to Dust and 13 Views of the Suicide Woods. Some of us don't get a cult fiction sense from our reads very often, but you're likely to find it in John Goodrich's I Do Terrible Things, which offers up a meaty mix of Charles Willeford, John Skipp, and even Patricia Highsmith, all culminating into a nightmare of paranoia and crime that noir and horror fanatics will love. The results are unsettling and at best you'll be left with a sense of displacement that even your doctor will only be able to shrug at. Get on this book. Larissa Glasser, author of F4. The Collected Short Stories of Ring Lardner, Ring Lardner, 1929. Greatest Jokes of the Century
