Methodology, Theory, and Knowledge in the Managerial and Organizational Sciences Eliezer Geisler,1999-06-30 Geisler argues that the over reliance on co variation techniques and statistical methods instead of process approach and in depth analysis produces meaningless knowledge in the managerial and organizational sciences and indeed throughout all the social sciences He offers instead a new and different approach based on the notion of what he calls dynamic morphologies an architecture of slicing complex phenomena This way it is possible to explain many inconsistencies in research findings and to find a cohesive systematic outlook on research research design and knowledge creation Intellectually challenging and following in the footsteps of Kuhn Argyris and Popper Geisler s approach is frankly revolutionary in research design and contains its own notions terms and nomenclature A provocative discussion for academics and others well trained in the organizational managerial and social sciences Geisler's dynamic morphologies provide a means to research complex phenomena and gain knowledge about them They are composed of a chain of events combined logically and temporally and a method by which this process is studied Geisler also contends that knowledge in the organizational and managerial sciences is only viable when it describes and explains the complex higher order phenomena Therefore theory building and research in these fields must be linked to higher order constructs and the phenomena that they attempt to explain This is the central notion of amplitude that Geisler introduces and describes His book also criticizes the evolutionary epistemology view of knowledge creation and contends that knowledge in all of these fields of study in general is not evolutionary but instead cumulative and expansive

The Roots and Uses of Marketing Knowledge Terry Smith, 2020-01-20 Marketing theory is often developed in isolation not collaboration theoretical perspectives sometimes are ignorant of the diversity of marketing practice In The roots and uses of marketing knowledge a critical inquiry into the theory and practice of marketing the author engages with the vital conversation about how marketing knowledge is created disseminated and consumed looking beyond the traditional reification of practice in theory and verification of theory in practice The ontology of this work is anchored in subjective individual meaning the epistemological stance assumes that this meaning is socially constructed Consequently rich empirical data grounded in the context of experiential evidence is extracted from a comprehensive range of marketing constituencies academics practitioners managers consultants authors lecturers and students In its examination of the polarities hybridity and iterative flow of marketing knowledge creation and consumption this text posits a cohesive argument for a theory practice bipartite fusion not dichotomy adding valuable insights into the textual contextual and pedagogical representations of marketing knowledge The history and future of marketing knowledge is examined with the aid of instructive illustrations and insightful first hand experience Drawing on extensive qualitative research from a broad range of influential producers and vital consumers Dr Smith presents a relevant exciting marketing knowledge framework which will be a vital resource for academics students and practitioners
