Notes to Make the Sound Come Right T.J. Anderson III, 2004-07-01 In When Malindy Sings the great African American poet Paul Laurence Dunbar writes about the power of African American music the notes to make the sound come right. In this book T.J. Anderson III son of the brilliant composer Thomas Anderson Jr asserts that jazz became in the twentieth century not only a way of revising old musical forms such as the spiritual and work song but also a way of examining the African American social and cultural experience. He traces the growing history of jazz poetry and examines the work of four innovative and critically acclaimed African American poets whose work is informed by a jazz aesthetic. Stephen Jonas 1925 1970 and the unjustly overlooked Bob Kaufman 1925 1986 who have affinities with Beat poetry. Jayne Cortez 1936 whose work is rooted in surrealism and the difficult and demanding Nathaniel Mackey 1947 who has links to the language writers. Each fashioned a significant and vibrant body of work that employs several of the key elements of jazz. Anderson shows that through their use of complex musical and narrative weaves these poets incorporate both the tonal and performative structures of jazz and create work that articulates the African journey. From improvisation to polyrhythm they crafted a unique poetics that expresses a profound debt to African American culture one that highlights the crucial connection between music and literary production and links them to such contemporary writers as Michael Harper Amiri Baraka and Yusef Komunyakaa as well as young recording artists United Future Organization Us3 and Groove Collection who have successfully merged hip hop poetry and jazz.

Between the Lines Monique-Adelle Callahan, 2011-04-22 Between the Lines examines the role of three women poets of African descent Frances Harper Cristina Ayala and Auta de Souza in shaping the literary history of the Americas. Despite their different geographic locations each shared common concerns and wrestled in their works with the sociopolitical predicaments of the late nineteenth century. Their verse vigorously examined slavery and confronted the existential struggle against boundaries imposed by race, nation, and gender. The writers each conceived of the poem as a dynamic forum where new concepts of individual and collective freedoms could be imagined. In their work, readers encounter the poem as a site of cross-cultural exchange, a literary space in which the boundaries of nation can be redefined. Between the Lines places national poetics in a global economy of identities, histories, and languages. It looks to poetry to demonstrate how people translate from one cultural or linguistic arena to another, how literary expression writes identities, and how language is used to conceptualize history. The book is the first to juxtapose Cuba, Brazil, and the United States in a study of nineteenth-century women's poetry and the first to include the Lusophone literary tradition in a comparative study of African descendants in Latin America, the U.S., and the Caribbean. With close readings and expertly rendered translations, Monique Adelle Callahan situates the work of these three poets in a hemispheric context that opens up their writing to new interpretations and expands the definition of African American literature.

The Performance Apparatus Branislav Jakovljevic, 2025-04-15 The publication of Louis Althusser's 1969 article "Ideology and Ideological State Apparatuses" made a deep impact on cultural studies and was instrumental in the formation of the apparatus theory in film studies. While contemporaneous with the emergence of performance art, this article and the questions of ideology and apparatus it raises barely registered in the field of performance studies, which was then in its formative phase. Jakovljevic takes this absence of Althusser's apparatus theory from performance studies as an indicator of the ideological position of the field at the moment of its emergence, arguing that while theories of ideology played no major role in early performance studies, performance art itself offered a number of incisive critiques of ideology. Jakovljevic looks at permutations of the apparatus by investigating the work of theorists such as Louis Althusser, Michel Foucault, Gilles Deleuze, and Judith Butler, and engagements with the apparatus by a number of artists such as Amiri Baraka, Philippe Thomas, New York Art Language, Terry Fox, and Clive Robertson. Every house has a door, Jakovljevic suggests, that the centrality of behavior in early performance theory is important for the understanding of contemporary society, which is dominated by surveillance capitalism. If ideology is lodged in behaviors and if surveillance capitalism thrives on the monetization of the behavioral surplus, then performance theory can make significant contributions to our understanding of the moment in which we live and the future we are facing. The Performance Apparatus argues for the importance of continuing attention to the question of ideology in contemporary neoliberal order.
