board was lifted out the man's hand was thrust inside and emerged again with a large roll of banknotes. He turned his head for a quick glance around the room, his eyes burning out of a gaunt, hollow, cheeked, pallid face held on the torn window shade, and then in almost frantic haste he thrust the banknotes back inside the wall and began to replace the base board. But it was not the window shade nor yet the courtyard without with which he was concerned; it was the sound of a heavy footstep outside the door. And now the door was tried. The man on the door working with desperate energy to replace the base board coughed in an asthmatic wheezing way as there came the imperative smashing of a fist upon the door panels coupled with a gruff, curt demand for admittance. Again the man coughed to drown perhaps the slight rasping sound as the base board slid back into place and rising to his feet shuffled hastily to the door and unlocked it. The door swung violently open from without a heavy built, clean shaven, sharp featured man stepped into the room, slammed the door shut behind him, he locked it and swept a shrewd, inquisitive, suspicious glance about the place.
