An international team of more than 200 leading scholars in the field have contributed essays to the project Henry Ives Cobb's Chicago Edward W. Wolner, 2011-06-15 When championing the commercial buildings and homes that made the Windy City famous one can't help but mention the brilliant names of their architects Daniel Burnham Louis Sullivan and Frank Lloyd Wright among others But few people are aware of Henry Ives Cobb 1859-1931 the man responsible for an extraordinarily rich chapter in the city's turn of the century building boom and fewer still realize Cobb's lasting importance as a designer of the private and public institutions that continue to enrich Chicago's exceptional architectural heritage. Henry Ives Cobb's Chicago is the first book about this distinguished architect and the magnificent buildings he created including the Newberry Library, the Chicago Historical Society, the Chicago Athletic Association, the Fisheries Building for the 1893 World's Fair, and the Chicago Federal Building. Cobb filled a huge institutional void with his inventive Romanesque and Gothic buildings, something that the other architect giants occupied largely with residential and commercial work did not do. Edward W. Wolner argues that these constructions and the enterprises they housed, including the first buildings and master plan for the University of Chicago, signaled that the city had come of age that its leaders were finally pursuing the highest ambitions in the realms of culture and intellect. Assembling a cast of colorful characters from a free-wheeling age gone by and including over 140 images of Cobb's most creative buildings, Henry Ives Cobb's Chicago is a rare achievement, a dynamic portrait of an architect whose institutional designs decisively changed the city's identity during its most critical phase of development.

Past Imperfect Lawrence W. Towner, 1993-06-15 The essays and talks gathered in Past Imperfect cover a broad range of topics of continuing relevance to the humanities and to scholarship in general. Part I collects Towner's historical essays on the indentured servants, apprentices, and slaves of colonial New England that are standards of the new social history. The pieces in Part II express his vision of the library as an institution for research and education; here he discusses the rationale for the creation of research centers, the Newberry's pioneering policies for conservation and preservation, and the ways in which collections were built. In Part III Towner writes revealingly of his co-workers and mentors. Part IV assembles his statements as spokesman for the humanities, addressing questions of national priorities in funding and of so-called elitist scholarship versus public programs. The University of Michigan Library Newsletter, 1988

A Catalogue of the Pre-1500 Western Manuscript Books at the Newberry Library Paul Saenger, Newberry Library, 1989-10-15 The Newberry Library in Chicago possesses one of the most distinguished collections of medieval and Renaissance manuscript books in North America. Based on two major private collections of the late nineteenth century, those of Henry Probasco and Edward E. Ayer, and scrupulously added to in this century, the holdings include late medieval bibles and breviaries, books of hours, and books of homilies and seminal texts on astronomy. Some of the books, such as those from the libraries of Philip the Good and Anne of Brittany, are beautifully illuminated. But the collection also includes an unusual array of typical medieval books chosen not for their beauty but for their paleographical, codicological, and textual interest. Such codices include an eleventh-century Carthusian monk and numerous books of hours adapted for feminine use. Paul Saenger has painstakingly identified the text, illumination, physical structure, and provenance for each of the more than 200 books in the collection to provide an exemplary guide to literate culture in the late Middle Ages. This catalogue, carefully researched and handsomely illustrated, will be an invaluable resource for historians, art historians, paleographers, bibliographers, and collectors.

Sheehy, 1994-07-21 This professional reference provides solid advice to academic and public librarians for managing performing arts collections. Each chapter is written by one or more expert contributors and presents current and reliable information on collection management. They discuss personnel management, collection development, technical services, public services, the impact of new technologies, facilities management, financial planning, and political considerations. Each chapter closes with references cited in the chapter, and the volume concludes with a valuable selected annotated bibliography of important background sources and management tools.
