Tangwa,2010-11-01 For millennia

Africans have lived on the African continent in close contact with the diversities of nature floral faunal and human and in so doing they have developed cultures values attitudes and perspectives to the problems ethical and otherwise that have arisen from the existential pressures of their situation The problem however is that such values and perspectives do not necessarily form coherent ethical theories Theory making is a second order activity requiring a certain amount of leisure and comfort which the existential conditions of life on the African continent have not easily permitted in the retrospect able past The elements of African bioethics are to be found in its cultural values traditions customs and practices These are research able highlight able and usable by those who would The bioethical problems of our current global existential situation are such that all possible solutions no matter their provenance ought to be tried Western culture has far too loud a voice combined with deaf ears in contemporary ethical discourse But it should never be forgotten that other cultures have their own word to say and that alternative values ways of thinking and practices exist and attempt should always be made to bring these out and to highlight them if they could possibly contribute to the satisfactory solution of a global problem This book brings together various papers on bioethical issues and problems written at different times some previously published each of which attempts to bring out some African elements perspective or concern The African narrative style predominates through these essays but their framing conforms more or less to the Western paradigm for presenting academic issues

How Nature Matters Simon P. James,2022 How Nature Matters presents an original theory of nature s value based on part whole relations In so doing it solves the difficult problem of how we should conceptualize nature s cultural values The standard practice of framing them in terms of the provision of cultural ecosystem services is shown to be inadequate When natural things have cultural value they do not have it as service providers that is as means to valuable ends They have it as parts of valuable and meaningful wholes as parts of traditions narratives and cultural identities James develops his theory by investigating twelve real world cases concerning amongst other things the contentious practice of dugong hunting and the religious significance of the site where the Buddha is said to have become enlightened He also analyses some cutting edge policy related topics such as the debate surrounding the concept of relational value and takes a stand on various foundational issues in environmental philosophy including the question of whether anything on earth qualifies as natural This accessible engagingly written book will be essential reading for all those who wish to understand the moral and metaphysical dimensions of environmental issues
