The Use of Economic Instruments in Environmental Policy, 2004 This paper looks at the role and importance of economic instruments in the context of three specific biodiversity related Multilateral Environmental Agreements These are the Convention on international Trade in Endangered Species of Flora and Fauna CITES the Convention on Biological Diversity CBD and the Ramsar Convention on Wetlands of International Importance especially as Waterfowl Habitat Ramsar Convention The paper also discusses ways to improve and enhance the use of economic instruments as a means of conserving and sustaining biological diversity UNEP

Environmental Policy OECD, 1991

Environmental Policy in Search of New Instruments B. Dente, 2013-03-09 Environmental policy is undergoing a dramatic transformation The problems connected with global change the need for preventative action and the growing importance of non source pollution call for new courses of action and new institutional arrangements In this situation it is fairly obvious that both the traditional command and control policy instruments and the more modern financial and economic instruments are increasingly under stress This volume deliberately aims to break new ground in providing the conceptual tools necessary for the next generation of environmental policies In doing so it covers a wide interdisciplinary range from public policy analysis to international law and draws upon much international experience well reflected by the mixed composition of the contributors On the basis of a shared theoretical framework the book explores the potential of new policy instruments such as policy evaluation or mediation proposes alternative institutional arrangements for dealing with the issues classifies existing instruments and illuminates the process through which old and new tools can be set into operation

Handbook of Environmental Economics Karl-Goran Maler, Jeffrey R. Vincent, 2003-05-20 The Handbook of Environmental Economics focuses on the economics of environmental externalities and environmental public goods Volume I examines environmental degradation and policy responses from a microeconomic institutional standpoint Its perspective is dynamic including a consideration of the dynamics of natural systems and global with attention paid to issues in both rich and poor nations In addition to chapters on well established topics such as the theory and practice of pollution regulation it includes chapters on new areas of environmental economics research related to common property management regimes population and poverty mechanism design political economy of regulation experimental evaluations of policy instruments and technological change collection of systematically prepared case studies describing the environmental policy of thirteen countries in terms of capacity building. Capacity for environmental policy and management as the concept is used in this volume has been defined broadly as a society's ability to devise and implement solutions to environmental issues as part of a wider effort to achieve sustainable development. OECD Since the late 1960s capacity building in environmental policy and management can be observed across the world. It may have made insufficient progress as yet from an environmentalist point of view but it has produced some remarkable results and not only in the industrialised world. In the first chapter we present the conceptual framework that underlies the national case studies. In the course of our research project the authors of the book met together twice to discuss this framework in the light of the national experiences and to harmonise their approaches. In this way we have tried to offer more than a collection of individual and incoherent case studies focusing only on specific environmental problems, institutions, actors or instruments. The idea behind this book is to give a systematic comparative overview of the fundamental conditions under which environmental policies are practised in selected countries.

Environmental Infrastructure Management J.J. Boland, M.E. Bell, Eugene Z. Stakhiv, 1997-11-30 Environmental issues continue to burden governments and economies throughout the post communist countries of Central and Eastern Europe and the newly independent states of the former Soviet Union. Severe environmental degradation is endemic to the region; the existing environmental infrastructure is often inadequate; significant new investment is perhaps decades away and there is little knowledge of advanced techniques for impact assessment, project evaluation and project financing. The first two papers of Environmental Infrastructure Management survey available cost effective technology for solid waste treatment and air pollution control, providing guidance for possible incremental additions to existing infrastructure. There is also a discussion of transferable pollution credits as an instrument in regulating air quality. The discussion of economic incentives also embraces user fees and other pollution control instruments. A range of methods is presented for the evaluation and comparison of alternative projects where data are poor or scarce. Canadian experience with specific capital budgeting techniques is given comprehensive attention. Debt financing strategies are addressed in the context of present day Ukraine. Finally an outline is given of a general framework for making decisions about environmental projects including the use of environmental impact assessments.

Sustainable Development Critical Issues OECD, 2001-07-11 How can we meet the needs of today without diminishing the capacity of future generations to meet theirs? This is the central question posed by sustainable development. OECD countries committed themselves to sustainable development at the 1992 UN Conference on Environment and Development. Green Budget Reform in Europe Kai Schlegelmilch, 2012-12-06 Budgets have a big influence on the economy and society. With many countries about 50 percent of total expenditures and income pass through the budget via taxes, charges and expenditures. In recent years many countries, e.g. in the OECD and the EU, have tended to use this influence in an environmentally rational way. Traditional environmental policy has relied on command and control and end-of-pipe technologies that have proven to be insufficient in coping with the challenge of global change Hence many countries have started to investigate the environmental impacts of their budgets by looking at existing taxes and charges as well as tax allowances and exemptions and other relevant regulations and expenditures even to have a special impact on the environment The implementation of those not meant such findings is now broadly discussed in these countries This publication will contribute to the debate It is a result of a wider project called Green Budget Reform Prospects in Central and Eastern Europe initiated by Vida Ogorelec Wagner managing Director of Umanotera The Slovenian Foundation for Sustainable Development and then jointly developed proposed to the EC and carried out in partnership with Kai Schlegelmich of the Wuppertal Institute in Germany The project comprised an international seminar on Green Budget Reform in April 1997 at Lake Bled Slovenia and the Case Study of Sloveilla

Economic Instruments for Water Management Ronaldo Seroa da Motta, 2004-01-01 This book argues that the economic appeal of using water charges to promote efficiency in usage and pollution control can be constrained by institutional and operational problems Analysing the cases of France Mexico and Brazil the authors respecti Green Budget Reform , Green Budget Reform Robert Gale, Stephan Barg, 2014-04-08 This volume explores 25 case studies of fiscal measures that have been adopted successfully by governments in North America and Europe to reduce environmental degradation Each study lays out the implementation issues and problems faced and compares the effectiveness of the measure against its expectations The political implications are also discussed and the text draws on common themes and lessons to be gained from the measures so far The volume is divided into sections on energy agriculture air and water pollution and waste management
