Cyberspace opens up infinitely new possibilities to the deviant imagination With access to the Internet and sufficient know how you can if you are so inclined buy a bride cruise gay bars go on a global shopping spree with someone else s credit card break into a bank s security system plan a demonstration in another country and hack into the Pentagon all on the same day In more than any other medium time and place are transcended undermining the traditional relationship between physical context and social situation This book crosses the boundaries of sociological criminological and cultural discourse in order to explore the implications of these massive transformations in information and communication technologies for the growth of criminal and deviant identities and behaviour on the Internet This is a book not about computers nor about legal controversies over the regulation of cyberspace but about people and the new patterns of human identity behaviour and association that are emerging as a result of the communications revolution      Coming of Age in Second Life Tom Boellstorff, 2015-08-25 Millions of people around the world today spend portions of their lives in online virtual worlds Second Life is one of the largest of these virtual worlds The residents of Second Life create communities buy property and build homes go to concerts meet in bars attend weddings and religious services buy and sell virtual goods and services find friendship fall in love the possibilities are endless and all encountered through a computer screen At the time of its initial publication in 2008 Coming of Age in Second Life was the first book of anthropology to examine this thriving alternate universe Tom Boellstorff conducted more than two years of fieldwork in Second Life living among and observing its residents in exactly the same way anthropologists traditionally have done to learn about cultures and social groups in the so called real world He conducted his research as the avatar Tom Bukowski and applied the rigorous methods of anthropology to study many facets of this new frontier of human life including issues of gender race sex money conflict and antisocial behavior the construction of place and time and the interplay of self and group Coming of Age in Second Life shows how virtual worlds can change ideas about identity and society Bringing anthropology into territory never before studied this book demonstrates that in some ways humans have always been virtual and that virtual worlds in all their rich complexity build upon a human capacity for culture that is as old as humanity itself Now with a new preface in which the author places his book in light of the most recent transformations in online culture Coming of Age in Second Life remains the classic ethnography of virtual worlds

Deus in Machina: Religion, Technology, and the Things in Between Jeremy Stolow, 2013 The essays in this volume explore how two domains of human experience and action religion and technology are implicated in each other Contrary to commonsense understandings of both religion as an otherworldly orientation and technology as the name for tools techniques and expert knowledges oriented to this world the contributors to this volume challenge the grounds on which this division has been erected in the first place What sorts of things come to light when one allows religion and technology to mingle freely In an effort to answer that question Deus in Machina embarks upon an interdisciplinary voyage across diverse traditions and contexts where religion and technology meet from the design of clocks in medieval Christian Europe to the healing power of prayer in premodern Buddhist Japan to 19th century Spiritualist devices for communicating with the dead to Islamic debates about kidney dialysis in contemporary Egypt to the work of disability activists using documentary film to reimagine Jewish kinship to the representation of Haitian Vodou on the Internet among other case studies Combining rich historical and ethnographic detail with extended theoretical reflection Deus in Machina outlines new directions for the study of religion and as technology that will resonate across the human sciences including religious studies science and technology studies communication studies history anthropology and philosophy

The Gendered Cyborg Fiona Hovenden,Linda Janes,Gill Kirkup,Kathryn Woodward,2013-09-13 The Gendered Cyborg explores the relationship between representation technoscience and gender through the metaphor of the cyborg The contributors argue that the figure of the cyborg offers ways of thinking about the relationship between culture and technology people and machines which disrupt the power of science to enforce the categories through which we think about being human male and female Taking inspiration from Donna Haraway s
