Higher Learning In The Nations Service Carnegie Foundation Essay:

Higher Learning in the Nation's Service Ernest L. Boyer, Fred M. Hechinger, 1981 The services that have been provided by colleges and universities in the United States and the current confusion regarding the role of American higher education are reviewed Among the contributions made by higher education are extending higher learning to new classes of people advancing the nation's frontiers providing scientific expertise during wartime and helping veterans return to rewarding civilian pursuits Presently the external needs for higher learning's services are apparently less urgent than in the past and colleges are questioning their purposes in society Three historic functions of higher education are examined teaching research and service It is suggested that there are new challenges for higher education Colleges must not only teach but must also educate a generation of students quite different from those of the past Not only must they conduct research but they must do so with reduced federal support and must consider enticing but potentially compromising allegiances with the private sector As a new approach to service public policy studies for all students are advocated with special encouragement for a new program of civic education for adults It is proposed that colleges and universities help students and teachers use knowledge wisely so that higher education's dual role as servant and critic of society may be protected and advanced Author MLW

Piecing Together the Student Success Puzzle: Research, Propositions, and Recommendations George D. Kuh, Jillian Kinzie, Jennifer A. Buckley, Brian K. Bridges, John C. Hayek, 2011-10-13 Creating the conditions that foster student success in college has never been more important As many as four fifths of high school graduates need some form of postsecondary education to be economically self sufficient and manage the increasingly complex social political and cultural issues of the 21st century But about 40 percent of those who start college fail to earn a degree within 6 or 8 years an unacceptably low number This report examines the complicated array of social economic cultural and educational factors related to student success in college defined as academic achievement engagement in educationally purposeful activities satisfaction acquisition of desired knowledge skills and competencies persistence and attainment of educational objectives Although the trajectory for academic success in college is established long before students matriculate most institutions can do more than they are at present to shape how students prepared for college and they they engage in productive activities after they arrive This is the 5th issue of the 32nd volume of the Jossey

Bass series ASHE Higher Education Report Each monograph is the definitive analysis of a tough higher education problem based on thorough research of pertinent literature and institutional experiences Topics are identified by a national survey Noted practitioners and scholars are then commissioned to write the reports with experts providing critical reviews of each manuscript before publication

Aristocracy of Everyone Benjamin Barber,2012-11-21 In this brilliant controversial and profoundly original book Benjamin R Barber fundamentally alters the terms of the current debate over the value of opportunity in American education politics and culture Barber argues that the fashionable rallying cries of cultural literacy and political correctness completely miss the point of what is wrong with our society While we fret about the closing of the American mind we utterly ignore the closing of American schools While we worry about Japanese technology we fail to tap the more fundamental ideological resources on which our country was founded As Barber argues the future of America lies not in competition but in education Education in America can and must embrace both democracy and excellence Barber demonstrates persuasively that our national story has always comprised an intermingling of diverse contradictory often subversive voices Multiculturalism has from the very start defined America From his gripping portrait of America poised on the brink of unprecedented change Barber offers a daringly original program for effecting change for teaching democracy depends not only on the preeminence of education but on a resurgence of true community service A ringing challenge to the complacency cynicism and muddled thinking of our time that will change the way you feel about being an American citizen

Universitas Thomas E. Boudreau,1998-05-12 Believing that current educational policies and practices in American institutions of higher learning contribute to an incoherent disjunctive and wasteful four year experience for many undergraduates the author provides a sense of new direction to aid in the restructuring and reform of undergraduate education in America The primary question of the work is How can the years of undergraduate education empower the student with the knowledge and integrated set of skills needed for a lifetime of learning and productive work Boudreau focuses on the primary responsibility of all institutions of higher learning to provide a superior undergraduate education All other functions of a university should be secondary to this commitment Unfortunately this basic premise seems lost today This work argues that universities must undergo significant reform and renewal especially at the undergraduate level if they are to prepare students successfully for the future

Scholarship and Its Survival Jaroslav Pelikan,1983 Graduate education in the United States and issues related to the survival of scholarship are addressed Ways to balance undergraduate graduate and professional studies are considered including issues related to research training and the undergraduate major It is suggested that graduate schools coordinate their emphasis on general education with undergraduate colleges Topics of discussion include the dominance of the Ph D as the credential for college teachers the effects of graduate education on undergraduate teaching the shrinking of the collegiate student body and its implications for the need for scholars in the future the role of general education in the preparation of scholars the need for perspectives on foreign cultures in the scholar s training distinctions between traditional graduate divisions and professional schools tensions between colleges within and separate from universities and the graduate divisions of universities moral and ethical concerns of those engaged in research and the degree to which concern for equality of opportunity in education might change the quality of scholarship Appendices provide brief narrative descriptions and statistical tables on trends in graduate education including enrollments the number of institutions offering graduate degrees and sources of student support SW

21st Century Prometheus Maurizio Martellini,Ralf Trapp,2020-03-11 This book describes the evolving CBRN risk landscape and highlights advances in the core CBRN technologies including when combined with improvised explosive devices CBRNe threats It analyses how associated technologies create new safety and security risks challenging certain assumptions that underlie current control regimes The book also shows how technologies can be enablers for more effective strategies to mitigate these risks 21st century safety and security risks emanating from chemical biological radiological and nuclear materials whether resulting from natural events accidents or malevolent use are increasingly shaped by technologies that enable their development production or use in ways that differ from the past Artificial intelligence the use of cyberspace the revolution in the life sciences new manufacturing methods new platforms and equipment for agent delivery hypersonic weapons systems information tools utilised in hybrid warfare these and other technologies are reshaping the global security environment and CBRN landscape They are leading to a growing potential for highly targeted violence and they can lead to greater instability and vulnerability worldwide At the same time technology offers solutions to manage CBRN risks Examples are faster detection more accurate characterisation of the nature and origin of CBRN agents new forensic investigation methods or new medical treatments for victims of CBRN incidents New educational concepts help to foster a culture of responsibility in science and technology and strengthen governance New training methods help develop practical skills to manage CBRN risks more effectively The book concludes that there is a growing need for a holistic framework towards CBRN risk mitigation Traditional arms control mechanisms such as global regional or bilateral treaties and export controls are still needed as they provide a necessary legal and institutional framework But laws and technology denial alone will not suffice and institutional mechanisms can at times be weak Given the pace of technological progress and the diffusion of critical knowledge tools and materials policymakers must accept that CBRN risks cannot be eliminated altogether Instead society has to learn to manage these risks and develop resilience against them This requires a softer broadly based multi stakeholder approach involving governments industry the research and development communities educators and civil society Furthermore educating policymakers that cutting edge technologies may seriously affect global strategic stability could create incentives for developing a more creative and contemporary arms control strategy that fosters cooperation rather than incremental polarisation

Scholarship

Reconsidered Ernest L. Boyer, Drew Moser, Todd C. Ream, John M. Braxton, 2015-10-06 Shifting faculty roles in a changing landscape Ernest L Boyer's landmark book Scholarship Reconsidered Priorities of the Professoriate challenged the publish or perish status quo that dominated the academic landscape for generations His powerful and enduring argument for a new approach to faculty roles and rewards continues to play a significant part of the national conversation on scholarship in the academy Though steeped in tradition the role of faculty in the academic world has shifted significantly in recent decades The rise of the non tenure track class of professors is well documented If the historic rule of promotion and tenure is waning what role can scholarship play in a fragmented unbundled academy Boyer offers a still much needed approach He calls for a broadened view of scholarship audaciously refocusing its gaze from the tenure file and to a wider community This expanded edition offers in addition to the original text a critical introduction that explores the impact of Boyer's views a call to action for applying Boyer's message to the changing nature of faculty work and a discussion guide to help readers start a new conversation about how Scholarship Reconsidered applies today

Teaching and Learning Through Inquiry Virginia S. Lee, 2023-07-03 Inquiry guided learning IGL refers to an array of classroom practices that promote student learning through guided and increasingly independent investigation of complex questions and problems Rather than teaching the results of others investigations which students learn passively instructors assist students in mastering and learning through the process of active investigation itself IGL develops critical thinking independent inquiry students responsibility for their own learning and intellectual growth and maturity The 1999 Boyer Commission Report emphasized the importance of establishing a firm grounding in inquiry based learning and communication of information and ideas While this approach capitalizes on one of the key strengths of research universities the expertise of its faculty in research it is one that can be fruitfully adopted throughout higher education North Carolina State University is at the forefront of the development and implementation of IGL both at the course level and as part of a successful faculty led process of reform of undergraduate education in a complex research institution This book documents and explores NCSU s IGL initiative from a variety of perspectives how faculty arrived at their current understanding of inquiry guided learning and how they have interpreted it at various levels the individual course the major the college the university wide program and the undergraduate curriculum as a whole The contributors show how IGL has been dovetailed with other complementary efforts and programs and how they have assessed its impact The book is divided into four parts the first briefly summarizing the history of the initiative Part Two the largest section describes how various instructors departments and colleges in a range of disciplines have interpreted inquiry guided learning It provides examples from disciplines as varied as ecology engineering foreign language learning history music microbiology physics and psychology It also outlines the potential for even broader dissemination of inquiry guided learning in the undergraduate curriculum as a whole Part Three describes two inquiry guided learning programs for first year students and the interesting ways in which NCSU s university wide writing and speaking program and growing service learning program support inquiry guided learning Part Four documents how the institution has supported instructors and how they have supported themselves as well as the methods used to assess the impact of inquiry guided learning on students faculty and the institution as a whole The book has been written with three audiences in mind instructors who want to use inquiry guided learning in their classrooms faculty developers considering supporting comparable efforts on their campuses and administrators interested in managing similar undergraduate reform efforts It will also appeal to instructors of courses in the administration of higher education who are looking for relevant case studies of reform While this is a model successfully implemented at a research university it is one that is relevant for all institutions of higher education
