A Political Geography of Latin America Jonathan R. Barton, 2002-11-01. The nation states and peoples of South and Central America: Cuba, Haiti and the Dominican Republic that together form the political geographical region of Latin America encompass a wide range of societies, politics and economies. This text exposes the differences between places, regions and countries, individuals and societies, offering an invaluable insight into the themes of political and economic development and provides a guide to understanding power and space relations. From the Antarctic to the tropical jungles, the coastal communities to the highland villages, the mega cities to isolated rural existence, the political geographies of lives, localities, cities and rurality are too sophisticated to be subjected to generalizations. Adopting a critical human geography perspective, Jonathon Barton provides an understanding of similarities, difference and sophisticated human geographies.

Global Regionalization H. S. Geyer, 2006-01-01. Global Regionalization examines the astonishing political and economic changes that have completely reshaped the political geography of certain regions during the past fifteen years. It deals with the concept of global bloc formation, examining the impacts that changing political, economic conditions and relationships in and between nations have on demographic and economic flows.

Geography And Development Arthur Morris, 2005-08-15. First published in 1998. Written in a highly accessible style, this book examines economic development processes across the world. The old certainties of what constitutes development and whether it is the same for all peoples no longer exist. Goals once imposed by agencies like the World Bank are increasingly questioned and the spatial development planning characteristics of the 1960s and 70s is increasingly seen as an intrusion into free and competitive markets. Indeed a question now being asked is should development be promoted at all. This book examines these fundamental issues and presents and evaluates the different theoretical approaches to development. Each country has its own tale to tell and by using valuable case study material, the author shows how different policies have impacted on the geography of regions. Processes of development in the newly industrialised countries, NICs of South Korea and Singapore are examined as well as the flexible specialisation model characteristic of many Mediterranean countries and the post industrial service economies based on high technology. The book argues convincingly that the fundamental spatial and temporal patterns of development in modern times are no longer the importance of physical resources but the complex human resources and the determination to work. Anchored firmly in the needs of students, this book will be widely welcomed by undergraduates taking courses in human geography and development studies.

Women as Producers and Consumers of Tourism in Developing Regions Yorghos Apostolopoulos,Sevil F. Sönmez,Dallen J. Timothy,2001-04-30 Tourism has become the world s largest industry according to the World Tourism Organization no surprise when one considers that it incorporates the world s oldest profession In some developing regions such as the Caribbean or the South Pacific tourism is the primary sector in which significant economic growth takes place In other regions including areas of Latin America Africa the Middle East and formerly communist eastern Europe tourism is just beginning to take off In all of these areas tourism s impact has been decidedly mixed Nowhere is this more visible than in the context of women s roles in tourism The contributors demonstrate the many ways in which gender determines the roles they play as both tourists and providers of tourism as product and service A valuable contribution to tourism studies women s studies and the literature of economic development The premises of this unique collection of research are that women s roles in tourism are gendered just as are their other roles in gendered societies that tourism affects women differently than it affects men and that women themselves are affected in different ways by tourism depending on such factors as race region and class leisured consumer vs working producer or guest vs host The contributors cover theoretical perspectives including those provided by feminists and economic development analysts women s roles in tourism in the mature industries of the Caribbean Southeast Asia and the South Pacific women s roles in the less developed tourist destinations of the Middle East Latin America Africa and eastern Europe and implications for the future of economic development policy and of gender relations in tourism Housing in the Aftermath of the Fast Track Land Reform Programme in Zimbabwe Lovemore Chipungu,Hangwelani Hope Magidimisha,2020-12-11 This book delves into the Fast Track Land Reform Programme FTLRP in Zimbabwe to provide insight into how it facilitated the delivery of housing for low income urban households It highlights the politics of land reforms and the power of community engagement in housing development in urban areas Prior to the FTLRP the Zimbabwean governments had never embraced popular modes of housing production as key factors in urban development In the area of low income housing informal housing schemes have always been treated with apathy and indifference This left the conventional mode of housing production to be the only legitimate means to house low income households despite its shortcomings However the onset of the FTLRP in 2000 resulted in homeless urban households grasping the opportunity to invade farms for housing development Through the lenses of Marxism and Neoliberalism this book analyses housing schemes that emerged and the overall impact of the FTLRP on housing and land delivery in Harare This analysis is based on empirical evidence obtained from key informants and household surveys conducted in Harare The authors argue that the FTLRP provided a platform for innovativeness by households supported by the unpronounced national urban vision and prowess of the political leadership Hence the success of these housing schemes can be measured by acquisition of land which guarantees households access to the city However some of these housing schemes pose challenges key among them being lack of infrastructure The book concludes by presenting a new model for effective delivery of land and housing for the urban poor This is envisaged as a useful policy tool for urban planners housing experts land economists urban and regional geographers as well as sociologists political scientists and social workers engaged in public administration of land and housing

The Andes Axel Borsdorf, Christoph Stadel, 2015-03-12 The Andes are attracting global interest again they hold valuable mineral resources tourists appreciate their great natural beauty and the diversity of indigenous cultures climbers scale rock and ice faces while many others are intrigued by regional political developments such as the Bolivarian revolution in Venezuela or the almost unfettered hegemony of the neoliberal economic model in Chile This volume is the first attempt for decades to present a complete overview of the longest mountain chain on the planet a region of remarkable climatic floristic and geologic diversity where advanced civilization developed well before the arrival of the Spanish Today the Andes continue to be characterized by their ethnic demographic cultural and economic diversity as well as by the disparity of local socioeconomic groups The Andean countries pursue a wide range of approaches to tackle the challenges of making the best use of their natural and cultural potential without damaging their ecological basis as well as to overcome economic disparity and foster social cohesion This book provides insights into this unique region and its most pressing issues complemented by a wealth of pictures and comprehensive diagrams which in sum help to better understand these fascinating mountains
