Dactylography; Or, The Study of Finger-prints Henry Faulds,2021-05-19 In Dactylography Or The Study of Finger prints Henry Faulds presents a pioneering examination of fingerprinting as a scientific method of identification melding meticulous observation with empirical research Faulds argues for the reliability of fingerprints as unique identifiers situating his work within the burgeoning fields of forensic science and criminology His literary style is both didactic and engaging employing case studies and real world applications to elucidate the principles of dactylography This seminal text marks a critical moment in the intersection of science and justice reflecting the late 19th century preoccupation with quantifying human identity as a means to enhance societal order Henry Faulds a Scottish physician and one of the early advocates of fingerprinting was influenced by his experiences in Japan where he first observed the potential of fingerprints for personal identification His background in medicine and interest in anthropology and criminology drove him to develop this method as a tool against crime spurred by the inadequacies of contemporary identification techniques Faulds s career marked by both scientific inquiry and social advocacy informed his conviction that fingerprinting could revolutionize law enforcement This compelling work is essential reading for anyone interested in forensic science criminology or the evolution of identification practices Faulds's groundbreaking insights not only laid the foundations for modern forensic science but also invite readers to contemplate the implications of identity in a rapidly changing world Chinese Art and Its Encounter with the World David Clarke,2011-08-01 Chinese Art and Its Encounter with the World examines Chinese art from the mid eighteenth century to the present beginning with discussion of a Chinese portrait modeler from Canton who traveled to London in 1769 and ending with an analysis of art and visual culture in post colonial Hong Kong By means of a series of six closely focused case studies often deliberately introducing non canonical or previously marginalized aspects of Chinese visual culture it analyzes Chinese art's encounter with the broader world and in particular with the West Offering more than a simple charting of influences it uncovers a pattern of richly mutual interchange between Chinese art and its others Arguing that we cannot fully understand modern Chinese art without taking this expanded global context into account it attempts to break down barriers between areas of art history which have hitherto largely been treated within separate and often nationally conceived frames Aware that issues of cultural difference need to be addressed by art historians as much as by artists it represents a pioneering attempt to produce art historical writing which is truly global in approach David Clarke is Professor in the Department of Fine Arts University of Hong Kong China's War Clouds: The Great Chinese Checkmate Lt Col JS Sodhi (Retd),2024-08-20 Internationally well known defence and strategic affairs analyst and awardee of several awards in the field of media Lt Col JS Sodhi Retd analyzes the rise of China economically and militarily since the Chinese Civil War ended in 1949 and how China poses the greatest danger to world peace and world order as not only does it challenge the superpower status of the USA but it has also emerged as a superpower itself with unbridled economic and military prowess With six wars on the horizon that China will wage in the next 39 years it will be a challenge to contain China unless bold steps are taken immediately before it is too late World Religions at Your Fingertips Michael McDowell,Nathan Robert Brown,2009 World Religions at Your Fingertips lets you pinpoint the information you want right now with sections that are highly organized tightly written and easy to navigate Book Jacket Korean Games with Notes on the Corresponding Games of China and Japan Stewart Culin,1895 The Rhetoric of American Civil Religion Jason A.
