Kineton In The Great War 1914-1921:

Military Service Tribunals and Boards in the Great War David Littlewood, 2017-11-15 While a plethora of studies have discussed why so many men decided to volunteer for the army during the Great War the experiences of those who were called up under conscription have received relatively little scrutiny Even when the implementation of the respective Military Service Acts has been investigated scholars have usually focused on only the distinct minority of those eligible who expressed conscientious objections It is rare to see equal significance placed on the fact that substantial numbers of men appealed or were appealed for on the grounds that their domestic business or occupational circumstances meant they should not be expected to serve David Littlewood analyses the processes undergone by these men and the workings of the bodies charged with assessing their cases through a sustained transnational comparison of the British and New Zealand contexts Kineton in the Great War, 1914-1921 Gillian Ashley-Smith, 1998-01-01 An attempt to trace the stories of the 38 men named on its War Memorial led the author to the study of Kineton at the time of World War I Kineton once a thriving market town and capital of its own tiny administrative area is today little more than a village tucked away in rural South Warwickshire and at the time of the outbreak of the war had it is said more horses than people Cake & Cockhorse, 1997 Royal Historical Society Annual Bibliography of British and Irish History Austin Gee, 2000 The Royal Historical Society's Annual Bibliography of British and Irish History provides a comprehensive and authoritative survey of books and articles on historical topics published in a single calendar year It is available before the end of the following year The volume is divided into sections to cover all periods of British and Irish history from Roman Britain to the end of the twentieth century and is arranged alphabetically It also includes sections on imperial and commonwealth history Over two hundred journals are searched annually and the editor's aim is to list all relevant books and articles published in the UK Each section is edited by a specialist in the field the whole is edited by Austin Gee for the Royal Historical Society The book's contents are indexed by author by place by personal name and by subject The subject keywords enable scholars to trace publications in which they are interested beyond the information conveyed in the title The Annual Bibliography is the most complete and up to date bibliography of its type and an indispensable tool for historians Stand To!, 1998 Books in Print, 2004 The British National Bibliography Arthur James Wells, 2000 The Great War 1914-1921 Mark McAndrew, 2001
