Keep A City Moving Urban Transport Management In Hong Kong:

Keep a City Moving Liang-Huew Wang, Anthony G. O. Yeh, 1993      Land-use/Transport Planning in Hong Kong Harry T. Dimitriou, Alison H.S Cook, 2019-07-09 First published in 1998 this volume is certain to be the definitive work about the practice of land use and transport planning in Hong Kong Dimitriou and Cook explore the historical developments current issues and problems policy and planning responses and new directions Hong Kong has experienced remarkable economic growth as the Gateway to China and its land use has become a model for other cities in the region and for China as a whole

The Earthscan Reader in Sustainable Cities David Satterthwaite, 2021-12-24 The last five years have brought an enormous growth in the literature on how urban development can meet human needs and ensure ecological sustainability This collection brings together the most outstanding contributions from leading experts on the issues surrounding sustainable cities and urban development The Earthscan Reader in Sustainable Cities is fully international in scope and coverage It will be the basic introduction to the subject for a wide range of students in urban geography planning and environmental studies and is essential reading for professionals involved with the successful running and development of cities      Transportation After Deregulation B Starr McMullen, 2001-09-12 Several of the papers in this volume are concerned with assessing both the timing and the impacts of deregulation and regulatory reform in the US transportation sector Of increasing interest is the importance of productivity growth and the role played by new technologies in a more competitive market environment Four of the papers in this volume deal directly with these issues in the context of motor carriers and railroads two sectors which have been operating under substantially reduced regulatory constraints for the past twenty years in the US Although the financial condition of US railroads has improved since 1980 there is still some concern regarding their long run viability as private enterprises Accordingly one of the papers considers the potential for further reductions in railroad costs through transcontinental mergers a controversial issue due to the small number of railroads that remain in the industry      Global Urbanization Eugenie L. Birch, Susan M. Wachter, 2011-02-25 For the first time in history the majority of the world's population lives in urban areas Much of this urbanization has been fueled by the rapidly growing cities of the developing world exemplified most dramatically by booming megacities such as Lagos Karachi and Mumbai In the coming years as both the number and scale of cities continue to increase the most important matters of social policy and economic development will necessarily be urban issues Urbanization across the world but especially in Asia and Africa is perhaps the critical issue of the twenty first century Global Urbanization surveys essential dimensions of this growth and begins to formulate a global urban agenda for the next half century Drawing from many disciplines the contributors tackle issues ranging from how cities can keep up with fast growing housing needs to the possibilities for public private partnerships in urban governance Several essays address the role that cutting edge technologies such as GIS software remote sensing and predictive growth models can play in tracking and forecasting urban growth Reflecting the central importance of the Global South to twenty first century urbanism the volume includes case studies and examples from China India Uganda Kenya and Brazil While the challenges posed by large scale urbanization are immense the future of human development requires that we find ways to promote socially inclusive growth environmental sustainability and resilient infrastructure The timely and relevant scholarship assembled in Global Urbanization will be of great interest to scholars and policymakers in demography geography urban studies and international development

Planning for a Better Urban Living Environment in Asia Anthony Gar-On Yeh, Mee Kam Ng, 2018-12-20 First published in 2000 this volume explores how Asia has developed very rapidly in the last quarter of the century and will be a main focus of the world in the 21st century With rapid growth and development the urban areas in the region are undergoing dramatic changes An appreciation of the heterogeneous nature of Asian cities and the related planning practices in the first step to understand various urban development problems in the region This book is a consolidated effort by prominent scholars in Asian planning schools to explore urban development and planning practices in Asia The book reflects on and examines some of the past and current challenges and considers future prospects of urban and regional planning environment housing redevelopment and conservation and planning education in Asia This book should be useful to students teachers researchers professionals and people who are interested in urban development planning and environment in Asia

Clearing the Air Frank W. Rusco, W. David Walls, 1995 The main source of particulates and nitrogen oxides in Hong Kong is attributable to goods vehicles and to a lesser extent buses taxis and private cars contribute only a small fraction of these pollutants even in densely populated areas or urban canyons The growing volume of vehicle traffic between Hong Kong and China contributes to increasing the level of vehicle emissions found in the territory These findings have important implications for both environmental and transport policies
