Educational Leadership and Change K.C. Wong, K.M. Cheng, 1995-07-01 This book arises from the regional conference of the Commonwealth Council for Educational Administration held in Hong Kong in 1992. Efforts have been made to select papers which fulfil the following objectives: illuminate the emerging issues in educational administration; generate discussion and comments on these issues; reflect how different parts of the world are responding to these issues; guide possible administrative actions based on well-informed discussion. The papers selected cover the shifting role of school leaders and their preparation; the latest trend in management of devolving administrative responsibilities to schools; and the cultural dimension of educational administration. Drawing on experiences from different parts of the world, this volume explores the above issues and reflects the differences in practice. Both editors are members of the University of Hong Kong. Wong Kam Cheung is the Head of the Department of Education. Cheng Kai Ming is the dean of the Faculty of Education. Educational Administration Robert H. Palestini, 2011 Newly appointed school administrators are often confused when faced with the prospect of having to assume a leadership role in a complex organization like a school or school system. Where does one start? An effective method would be to systematically examine the vital components that make up an organization. The new edition of Educational Administration: Leading with Mind and Heart suggests such a sequential and systematic approach.

Generational Identity, Educational Change, and School Leadership Corrie Stone-Johnson, 2016-03-22. Generational identity plays a large role in how teachers view educational change and school reform. Teachers of the Boomer generation, an era characterized by optimism and innovation, tend to be more resistant to change than those of Generation X, for whom standardization represents the norm, not a shift. This volume reviews five decades of research on educational change and teachers' varying responses to it from a generational perspective, providing school leaders with insight on how best to relate to these groups to achieve a common goal. Through ongoing professional development oriented by multigenerational grouping, teachers and school leaders can define success and create a multigenerational understanding of what good teaching and leadership look like. Resources in Education, 2000-10. Palestini advances a new theory of educational leadership seen through the dual lens of critical theory and the Ignatian vision and its practical implications. A truly novel approach, the author strives to acquaint administrators and students of educational administration with a different way of thinking about education and its administration. Possessing the knowledge and skills of leadership is only half the story; one must also develop a value system or philosophy that guides the leader's actions and provides the leader with the human touch. To advance his theory, the author includes chapters that outline the Ignatian vision of leadership, discuss the critical approach to leadership, and the integration of theory and practice, explore an organizational change process, and assess the effective implementation of positivism, the critical theory, and the Ignatian vision. The final chapter contains a practical application of this approach to a case study involving the very controversial topic of education tuition vouchers. Routledge Library Editions: Education
