Governing the Post-communist City Martin Horak, 2007-01-01 When faced with the rapid and disorienting transition from communism to democracy many eastern European leaders sought simple immediately rewarding answers to complex policy problems Undoubtedly this hurried approach had a significant impact on the quality of democratic government in formerly communist countries Through an analysis of urban politics in Prague between 1990 and 2000 Governing the Post Communist City sheds new light on the factors that shaped policy in eastern Europe at the time of its democratic transformation The first book length study of post communist urban politics in a city outside of Russia Governing the Post Communist City links the difficulties of democratic government in 1990s Prague to decisions made shortly after the fall of communism Focusing on the issues of road infrastructure and downtown development Martin Horak argues that local leadership was more concerned with insulating policy making processes from public influence than with creating new policies suited to post communist urban development This set a precedent for the whole institutional environment of post communist Prague and entrenched itself in the city s politics throughout the 1990s Original engaging and authoritative this study has much to say about the political climate in Prague after the downfall of communism and makes insightful conclusions about the factors that contributed to present political circumstances in the region      Social Capital and Peace-Building Michaelene Cox,2008-11-11 Pt 1 Social capital as an instrument of violence pt 2 Social capital as a catalyst for peace pt 3 Ambiguities of social capital in peace and conflict

State-Market Interactions in China's Reform Era Junmin Wang,2014-06-23 China today has the largest communist political regime and one of the most dynamic fastest growing and largest economies in the world Using a case study of China s tobacco industry this book analyses how the Chinese government was able to cultivate big state owned firms that have successfully embraced the global market The success of the Chinese economy and the many state owned firms within it have given rise to a Beijing Consensus challenging almost every principle enshrined in the so called Washington Consensus that espouses private ownership free markets and democracy By examining two important political processes in contemporary

China local state competition and global market building the book argues that the first process serves as a crucial basis for the second It illustrates how the local governments involved themselves in building and shaping the tobacco market throughout the 1980s and 1990s and how these domestic market dynamics created conditions for China s recent embrace of the international market Offering an in depth exploration of the political economic processes in a key Chinese state industry the book emphasizes that the key to understanding China s political transition is to look at how the state has been shaped by its market building projects both domestically and globally It presents an important contribution to studies on Chinese Business and International Political Economy

State Building in Boom Times Ryan Saylor,2014-06-11 Governments that preside over a capable state apparatus can better uphold the rule of law ensure democratic accountability stimulate economic development and provide good governance In the developing world countries differ substantially in their levels of state capacity and ability to achieve these ends leaving scholars and concerned citizens alike wondering about the origins of such inequalities In State Building in Boom Times Ryan Saylor argues that commodity booms and coalitional politics are central to understanding variations in state building within and across Latin America and Africa He shows how resource booms can trigger the provision of new public goods and institution building thus helping countries expand their state capacity But these possibilities hinge on coalitional politics as he demonstrates through six cases Countries ruled by export oriented coalitions Argentina Chile and Mauritius expanded their state capacity as a direct result of commodity booms Countries in which exporters were politically marginalized Colombia Ghana and Nigeria missed analogous state building opportunities because ruling coalitions preyed upon export wealth rather than promoting export interests which in turn undercut state building The coalitional basis of these divergent outcomes suggests that contrary to the prevailing belief in a resource curse natural resource wealth does not doom countries to low state capacity Instead export oriented coalitions can harness boom times for developmental gains even in the context of weak institutions Saylor s work encourages us to reexamine widespread assumptions about the relationship between resource wealth and state building particularly the resource curse State Building in Boom Times elucidates which public policies best serve developing countries trying manage their natural resource wealth      The European Corporation Klaus Gugler, Evgeni Peev, 2023-06-15 The product of a long standing collaboration and recent collective research effort by members of the CGEUI network The European Corporation makes an important contribution to the ongoing debate over convergence to the Anglo Saxon model of corporate governance and persistence in corporate governance and law in Europe This book fills the gap in the debate and literature s lack of country specific evidence on the evolution of ownership and control which has proven to be a serious impediment to both legal and economic analysis and evidence based policymaking It provides systematic and comparable accounts of ownership and control structure change respectively persistence in large firms across Europe over the decades following the global corporate governance revolution in the 1990s Focusing on countries in Europe s four main regions this volume presents and discusses the net effects of the interplay between the global corporate governance revolution and of its main countervailing forces in Europe
